This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

APPENDIX.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

CANDIDATES for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Algebra through Simple Equations, Andrews' and Stoddard's Latin Grammar, and Andrews' Latin Reader. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic,—Greenleaf's National and Adams' are recommended, and in Mental Arithmetic, Colburn's First Lessons.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in these studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations will be so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first three weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

None will be admitted to the Junior Class under sixteen years of age, and none to the Senior under eighteen.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first three weeks of this term will be considered as probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline or in maturity of character may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected (extraordinary circumstances excepted) that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The whole course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first class, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued and take up the studies of the second year as they have time. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress and not according to the time spent in the Institution.

FAMILY ACCOMMODATIONS.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole; each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle, than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates by its invigorating influence. But it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother is the appropriate teacher. Some may inquire, "What then can be the design of this arrangement?" It may be replied, that the family work must be performed—that it is difficult to find hired domestics, and to retain them any considerable time when they are found—and that young ladies engaged in study suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. This feature of the Institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather throw before those who are seeking for them the privileges of this Seminary, additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

PUNCTUALITY, STUDY HOURS AND RECREATION.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year, is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for another, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should be uninterrupted. Calls and visits made by young ladies, are confined to recreation hours, and to the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of the day is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution and strangers from abroad may feel at liberty to call on the teachers any day or hour most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

SABBATH.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving to the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable spot for the scenes of the Sabbath.

EXPENSES.

Board and tuition, exclusive of fuel and lights, are ~~$125~~ for the school year of forty weeks; ~~$68~~.00 to be paid on entrance, and ~~$63~~.00 at the commencement of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is made by the week, and is higher in proportion, at the rate of ~~$160~~ a year.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused by delinquency in this respect.

TERMS AND VACATIONS.

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the ensuing year will be eleven weeks in length, the second term fifteen weeks, and the third, fourteen.

FALL TERM commences	Thursday, Sept. 12, 1867.
WINTER VACATION commences . .	Wednesday, Nov. 27, 1867.

SUMMER VACATION commences	Friday, July 24, 1868.

ANNIVERSARY AND PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.

The Public Examinations at the close of the present year will commence Tuesday, A. M., July 16.

The Anniversary Exercises will be Thursday, July 18, commencing at 11 o'clock, A. M. The Annual Address will be delivered by Rev. George N. Boardman, of Binghampton, N. Y.

APPLICATIONS.

Communications relating to admission to the Seminary may be addressed to the Principal. The name, age, attainments and general characteristics of the applicant should be stated.

TO ACCEPTED CANDIDATES FOR THE ENSUING YEAR.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day (September 12.) All should come on Wednesday, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

You are expected to furnish your own towels, napkins, and napkin ring, one pair of sheets and pillow cases, and one blanket; also a table or dessert spoon and tea-spoon. Each of these and all articles of clothing should be distinctly marked with the owner's name.

Provide suitable clothing for the season and climate, such as flannels, woolen hose, thick shoes, overshoes and an umbrella, also a dress suitable for Gymnastic exercise.

It is desirable that as far as practicable you be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas, the Sabbath Hymn and Tune Book, and books of reference for the study of the Bible, such as Commentary, Bible Dictionary, Nevin's Biblical Antiquities, and Coleman's Historical Geography of the Bible.

You are also requested to bring with you any of the regular text books in your possession, historical works, books containing selections for improvement in reading, standard poetical works, and standard musical works.

Books and Stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

In communications by writing there is liability to mistakes between inquiries about the admission of pupils, and decided applications. During the month of June, a copy of this Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate for the ensuing year, with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any fail to receive the Catalogue who suppose themselves accepted, information should be communicated immediately.

MEMORANDUM SOCIETY.

Communications relating to the Memorandum Society may be addressed to the Secretary. Members are particularly requested to report any changes in name or residence, or any failure to receive the Annual Catalogue promptly; also, any facts in regard to other members of the Society or any former pupils of the Institution.

APPENDIX.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

CANDIDATES for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Algebra through Simple Equations, Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic,—Greenleaf's National and Adams' are recommended, and in Mental Arithmetic, Colburn's First Lessons.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in these studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations will be so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first three weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

None will be admitted to the Junior Class under sixteen years of age, and none to the Senior under eighteen.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first three weeks of this term will be considered as probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline or in maturity of character may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected (extraordinary circumstances excepted) that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The whole course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first class, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued and take up the studies of the second year as they have time. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress and not according to the time spent in the Institution.

FAMILY ACCOMMODATIONS.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle, than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates by its invigorating influence. But it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother is the appropriate teacher. Some may inquire "What then can be the design of this arrangement?" It may be replied, that the family work must be performed—that it is difficult to find hired domestics, and to retain them any considerable time when they are found—and that young ladies engaged in study suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. This feature of the Institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather throw before those who are seeking for them the privileges of this Seminary, additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

PUNCTUALITY, STUDY HOURS AND RECREATION.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year, is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for another, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should be uninterrupted. Calls and visits made by young ladies, are confined to recreation hours, and to the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of the day is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution and strangers from abroad may feel at liberty to call on the teachers any day or hour most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

SABBATH.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving to the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable spot for the scenes of the Sabbath.

EXPENSES.

Board and tuition, exclusive of fuel and lights, are $150 for the school year of forty weeks; $75.00 to be paid on entrance, and $75.00 at the commencement of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is made by the week, and is higher in proportion, at the rate of $180 a year.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused by delinquency in this respect.

TERMS AND VACATIONS.

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the ensuing year will be ten weeks in length, the second term sixteen weeks, and the third, fourteen.

FALL TERM commences	Thursday, Sept. 17, 1868.

ANNIVERSARY AND PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.

The Public Examinations at the close of the present year will commence Tuesday A. M., July 21.

The Anniversary Exercises will be Thursday, July 23, commencing at 11 o'clock, A. M. The Annual Address will be delivered by Rev. V. D. Reed, D. D., of Camden, N. J.

APPLICATIONS.

Communications relating to admission to the Seminary may be addressed to the Principal. The name, age, attainments and general characteristics of the applicant should be stated.

TO ACCEPTED CANDIDATES FOR THE ENSUING YEAR.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day (September 17.) All should come on Wednesday, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

You are expected to furnish your own towels, napkins, and napkin ring, one pair of sheets and pillow cases, and one blanket; also a table or dessert spoon and a tea-spoon. Each of these and all articles of clothing should be distinctly marked with the owner's name.

Provide suitable clothing for the season and climate, such as flannels, woolen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, and an umbrella, also a dress suitable for Gymnastic exercise.

It is desirable that as far as practicable you be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas, the Sabbath Hymn and Tune Book, and books of reference for the study of the Bible, such as Commentary, Bible Dictionary, Nevin's Biblical Antiquities, and Coleman's Historical Geography of the Bible.

You are also requested to bring with you any of the regular text books in your possession, historical works, books containing selections for improvement in reading, standard poetical works, and standard musical works.

Books and Stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

In communications by writing there is liability to mistakes between inquiries about the admission of pupils, and decided applicants. During the month of June a copy of this Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate for the ensuing year, with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any fail to receive the Catalogue who suppose themselves accepted, information should be communicated immediately.

MEMORANDUM SOCIETY.

Communications relating to the Memorandum Society may be addressed to the Secretary. Members are particularly requested to report any changes in name or residence, or any failure to receive the Annual Catalogue or the last Memorandum Catalogue, promptly; also, any facts in regard to other members of the Society or any former pupils of the Institution.

APPENDIX.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

CANDIDATES for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Algebra through Simple Equations. Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic,—Greenleaf's National and Adams' are recommended, and in Mental Arithmetic, Colburn's First Lessons.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in these studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations will be so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first three weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

None will be admitted to the Junior Class under sixteen years of age, and none to the Senior under eighteen.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first three weeks of this term will be considered as probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline or in maturity of character may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected (extraordinary circumstances excepted) that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The whole course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first class, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued and take up the studies of the second year as they have time. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress and not according to the time spent in the Institution.

FAMILY ACCOMMODATIONS.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle, than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates by its invigorating influence. But it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother is the appropriate teacher. Some may inquire "What then can be the design of this arrangement?" It may be replied, that the family work must be performed—that it is difficult to find hired domestics, and to retain them any considerable time when they are found—and that young ladies engaged in study suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. This feature of the Institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather throw before those who are seeking for them the privileges of this Seminary, additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

PUNCTUALITY, STUDY HOURS AND RECREATION.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year, is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for another, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should be uninterrupted. Calls and visits made by young ladies, are confined to recreation hours, and to the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of the day is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution and strangers from abroad may feel at liberty to call on the teachers any day or hour most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

SABBATH.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving to the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable spot for the scenes of the Sabbath.

EXPENSES.

Board and tuition, exclusive of fuel and lights, are $150 for the school year of forty weeks; $75.00 to be paid on entrance, and $75.00 at the commencement of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is made by the week, and is higher in proportion, at the rate of $180 a year.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused by delinquency in this respect.

TERMS AND VACATIONS.

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the ensuing year will be eleven weeks in length, the second term fifteen weeks, and the third, fourteen.

FALL TERM commences	Thursday, Sept. 9, 1869.

TO ACCEPTED CANDIDATES FOR THE ENSUING YEAR.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day (September 9.) All should come on Wednesday, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

Books and Stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

In communications by writing there is liability to mistakes between inquiries about the admission of pupils, and decided applicants. During the month of June a copy of this Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate for the ensuing year, with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any fail to receive the Catalogue who suppose themselves accepted, information should be communicated immediately.

MEMORANDUM SOCIETY.

Communications relating to the Memorandum Society may be addressed to the Secretary. Members are particularly requested to report any changes in name or residence, or any failure to receive the Annual Catalogue or the last Memorandum Catalogue, promptly; also, any facts in regard to other members of the Society or any former pupils of the Institution.

APPENDIX.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

CANDIDATES for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar and Analysis, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Algebra through Simple Equations, Physical Geography, Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic,—Greenleaf's National and Adams' are recommended, and in Mental Arithmetic, Colburn's First Lessons.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in these studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations will be so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first three weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

None will be admitted to the Junior Class under sixteen years of age, and none to the Senior under eighteen.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first three weeks of this term will be considered as probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline or in maturity of character may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected (extraordinary circumstances excepted) that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The whole course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first class, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued and take up the studies of the second year as they have time. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress and not according to the time spent in the Institution.

Lessons in Elocution will be given by PROF. MARK BAILEY, of New Haven.

Instruction is also given in Vocal Music, Reading, Penmanship, Gymnastics, Crayon and Pencil Drawing, Painting in Water-Colors, and French. Instrumental Music is not taught, but those who have given attention to it can have the use of a piano if they desire it.

FAMILY ACCOMMODATIONS.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle, than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates by its invigorating influence. But it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother is the appropriate teacher. Some may inquire "What then can be the design of this arrangement?" It may be replied, that the family work must be performed—that it is difficult to find hired domestics, and to retain them any considerable time when they are found—and that young ladies engaged in study suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. This feature of the Institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather throw before those who are seeking for them the privileges of this Seminary, additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

PUNCTUALITY, STUDY HOURS AND RECREATION.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year, is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for another, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should be uninterrupted. Calls and visits made by young ladies, are confined to recreation hours, and to the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of the day is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers any day or hour most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

SABBATH.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This Institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving to the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable spot for the scenes of the Sabbath.

EXPENSES.

Board and tuition, exclusive of fuel and lights, are $150 for the school year of thirty nine weeks; $75 to be paid on entrance, and $75 at the commencement of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is made by the week, and is higher in proportion, at the rate of $180 a year.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused by delinquency in this respect.

TERMS AND VACATIONS.

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the ensuing year will be eleven weeks in length, the second term fourteen weeks, and the third, fourteen.

FALL TERM begins	Thursday, Sept. 8, 1870.

ANNIVERSARY AND PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.

The Public Examinations at the close of the present year will commence Tuesday A. M., July 5.

The Anniversary Exercises will be Thursday, July 7, commencing at 11 o'clock, A. M. Anniversary Address by Prof. JULIUS H. SEELYE of Amherst College.

APPLICATIONS.

Communications relating to admission to the Seminary may be addressed to the Principal. The name, age, attainments, and general characteristics of the applicant should be stated.

TO ACCEPTED CANDIDATES FOR THE ENSUING YEAR.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day (September 8.) All should come on Wednesday, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

You are expected to furnish your own towels, napkins and napkin ring, one pair of sheets and pillow cases, and one blanket; also a table or dessert spoon and a tea spoon. Each of these and all articles of clothing should be distinctly marked with the owner's name.

Provide suitable clothing for the season and climate, such as flannels, woolen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, and an umbrella, also a dress for Gymnastic exercise.

It is desirable that as far as practicable you be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas, the Sabbath Hymn and Tune Book, and books of reference for the study of the Bible, such as Commentary, Bible Dictionary, Nevin's Biblical Antiquities, and Coleman's Historical Geography of the Bible.

You are also requested to bring with you any of the regular text books in your possession, historical works, books containing selections for improvement in reading, standard poetical works, and standard musical works.

Books and Stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

In communications by writing there is liability to mistakes between inquiries about the admission of pupils, and decided applications. During the month of June a copy of this Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any fail to receive the Catalogue who suppose themselves accepted, information should be communicated immediately.

MEMORANDUM SOCIETY.

Communications relating to the Memorandum Society may be addressed to the Secretary. Members are particularly requested to report any changes in name or residence, or any failure to receive the Annual Catalogue or the last Memorandum Catalogue, promptly; also, any facts in regard to other members of the Society or any former pupils of the Institution.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

CANDIDATES for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar and Analysis, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, through Elementary Algebra, Physical Geography, Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic,—Greenleaf's National and Adams' are recommended, and in Mental Arithmetic, Colburn's First Lessons.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in these studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations will be so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first three weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

None will be admitted to the Junior Class under sixteen years of age, and none to the Senior under eighteen.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first three weeks of this term will be considered as probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline or in maturity of character may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected (extraordinary circumstances excepted) that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The whole course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first class, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued and take up the studies of the second year as they have time. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress and not according to the time spent in the Institution.

Instruction is also given in Vocal Music, Reading, Penmanship, Gymnastics, Crayon and Pencil Drawing, Painting in Water-Colors, and French. Instrumental Music is not taught, but those who have given attention to it can have the use of a piano if they desire it.

FAMILY ACCOMMODATIONS.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituents parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle, than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates by its invigorating influence. But it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother the appropriate teacher. Some may inquire "What then can be the design of this arrangement?" It may be replied, that the family work must be performed—that it is difficult to find hired domestics, and to retain them any considerable time when they are found—and that young ladies engaged in study suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. This feature of the Institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather throw before those who are seeking for them the privileges of this Seminary, additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

PUNCTUALITY, STUDY HOURS AND RECREATION.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year, is the standand presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is imposible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for another, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should be uninterrupted. Calls and visits made by young ladies, are confined to recreation hours, and to the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of the day is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers any day or hour most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

SABBATH.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This Institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving to the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable spot for the scenes of the Sabbath.

EXPENSES.

Board and tuition, exclusive of fuel and lights, are $150 for the school year of thirty nine weeks; $75 to be paid on entrance, and $75 at the commencement of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is made by the week, and is higher in proportion, at the rate of $180 a year.

Pupils coming from a distance are requested to obtain checks on some bank in Boston, Hartford or New York. Post Office Orders should be made payable in Northampton.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused by delinquency in this respect.

TERMS AND VACATIONS.

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the ensuing year will be eleven weeks in length, the second term fourteen weeks, and the third, fourteen.

FALL TERM begins	Thursday, Sept. 7, 1871

ANNIVERSARY AND PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.

The Public Examinations at the close of the present year will commence Tuesday A. M., July 4.

The Anniversary Exercises will be Thursday, July 6, commencing at 11 o'clock, A. M.

APPLICATIONS.

Communications relating to admission to the Seminary may be addressed to the Principal. The name, age, attainments, and general characteristics of the applicant should be stated.

TO ACCEPTED CANDIDATES FOR THE ENSUING YEAR.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day (September 6.) All should come on Wednesday, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

You are expected to furnish your own towels, napkins and napkin ring, one pair of sheets and pillow cases, and one blanket; also a table or dessert spoon and a tea spoon. Each of these and all articles of clothing should be distinctly marked with the owner's name.

Provide suitable clothing for the season and climate, such as flannels, woolen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, and an umbrella, also a dress for Gymnastic exercise.

It is desirable that as far as practicable you be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas, the Sabbath Hymn and Tune Book, and books of reference for the study of the Bible, such as Commentary, Bible Dictionary, Nevin's Biblical Antiquities, and Coleman's Historical Geography of the Bible.

You are also requested to bring with you any of the regular text books in your possession, historical works, books containing selections for improvement in reading, standard poetical works, and standard musical works.

Books and Stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

In communications by writing there is liability to mistakes between inquiries about the admission of pupils, and decided applications. During the month of June a copy of this Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any fail to receive the Catalogue who suppose themselves accepted, information should be communicated immediately.

The Mt. Holyoke Seminary is located in South Hadley, Mass., (not Holyoke.)

All persons wishing to come to the Seminary should stop at the "Smith's Ferry" Station on the Connecticut River R. R., where stages are in waiting on the arrival of each of the trains.

Arrangements have been perfected whereby Tickets and Checks for Baggage can be obtained in New York City, Boston, Albany, and all the large towns on the Boston and Albany R. R. direct for Smith's Ferry.

MEMBERS of the MEMORANDUM SOCIETY will remember that the next Catalogue of the Society will be published in 1872, and that it is the duty of each member to write to the Secretary, early in January, giving facts in regard to herself, and other members of the Society. Great inconvenience and additional labor are caused by lack of promptness in writing. Hereafter one reminder only (in February) will be sent to the members instead of the three provided for in the Constitution.

Married members are particularly requested to give their maiden names.

The postage of the Catalogue will be about ten cents.

APPENDIX.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

CANDIDATES for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar and Analysis, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, through Elementary Algebra, Physical Geography, Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic,—Greenleaf's National and Adams' are recommended, and in Mental Arithmetic, Colburn's First Lessons.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in these studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations will be so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first few weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

None will be admitted to the Junior Class under sixteen years of age, and none to the Senior under eighteen.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first few weeks of this term will be considered as probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline or in maturity of character may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected (extraordinary circumstances excepted) that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The whole course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first class, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued and take up the studies of the second year as they have time. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress and not according to the time spent in the Institution.

CHARLES A. YOUNG, of Dartmouth College. Lessons in Elocution will be given by PROF. J. W. CHURCHILL, of Andover.

Instruction is also given in Vocal Music, Reading, Penmanship, Gymnastics, Crayon and Pencil Drawing, Painting in Water-Colors. Greek, French and German. Instrumental Music is not taught, but those who have given attention to it can have the use of a piano if they desire it.

FAMILY ACCOMMODATIONS.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle, than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates by its invigorating influence. But it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother the appropriate teacher. Some may inquire "What then can be the design of this arrangement?" It may be replied, that the family work must be performed—that it is difficult to find, hired domestics, and to retain them any considerable time when they are found—and that young ladies engaged in study suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. This feature of the Institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather throw before those who are seeking for them the privileges of this Seminary, additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

PUNCTUALITY, STUDY HOURS AND RECREATION.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year, is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for another, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should be uninterrupted. Calls and visits made by the young ladies, are confined to recreation hours, and to the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of Wednesday is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers any day or hour most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

SABBATH.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This Institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving to the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable for the scenes of the Sabbath.

EXPENSES.

Board and tuition, exclusive of fuel and lights, are $150 for the school year of thirty-nine weeks; $75 to be paid the first Monday of the Fall term, and $75 the first Monday of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is made by the week, and is higher in proportion, at the rate of $180 a year.

Pupils coming from a distance are requested to obtain checks on some bank in Boston, Hartford or New York. Post-Office Orders should be made payable in Northampton.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused by delinquency in this respect.

TERMS AND VACATIONS.

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the ensuing year will be eleven weeks in length, the second term fourteen weeks, and the third, fourteen.

APPLICATIONS.

Communications relating to admission to the Seminary may be addressed to the Principal. The name, age, attainments, and general characteristics of the applicant should be stated.

TO ACCEPTED CANDIDATES FOR THE ENSUING YEAR.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day (September 5.) All should come on Wednesday, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

You are expected to furnish your own towels, napkins and napkin ring, one pair of sheets and pillow cases, and one blanket; also a dessert spoon or a tea spoon. Each of these and all articles of clothing should be distinctly marked with the owner's name.

Provide suitable clothing for the season and climate, such as flannels, woolen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, and an umbrella, also a dress for Gymnastic exercise.

It is desirable that as far as practicable you be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas, the Sabbath Hymn and Tune Book, and books of reference for the study of the Bible, such as Commentary, Bible Dictionary, Nevin's Biblical Antiquities, and Coleman's Historical Geography of the Bible.

You are also requested to bring with you any of the regular text books in your possession, historical works, books containing selections for improvement in reading, standard poetical works, and standard musical works.

Books and Stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

In communications by writing there is liability to mistakes between inquiries about the admission of pupils, and decided applications. During the month of June a copy of this Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any fail to receive the Catalogue who suppose themselves accepted, information should be communicated immediately.

The Mt. Holyoke Seminary is located in South Hadley, Mass., (not Holyoke.)

All persons wishing to come to the Seminary should stop at the "Smith's Ferry" Station on the Connecticut River R. R., where stages are in waiting on the arrival of each of the trains.

APPENDIX.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

CANDIDATES for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar and Analysis, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, through Elementary Algebra, Physical Geography, Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic,—Greenleaf's National and Eaton's are recommended, and in Mental Arithmetic, Colburn's First Lessons.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in these studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations will be so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first few weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

None will be admitted to the Junior Class under sixteen years of age, and none to the Senior under eighteen.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first few weeks of this term will be considered as probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline or in maturity of character, may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected, extraordinary circumstances excepted, that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The whole course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first class, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued, and take up the studies of the second year as they have time. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress and not according to the time spent in the Institution.

and the lessons in Elocution by PROF. J. W. CHURCHILL, of Andover. The lessons in German, during a part of the current year, were given by PROF. ADOLPHE SPIESER.

Superior advantages are afforded in Greek, French, and German; and it is hoped that many will be induced to pursue these languages. Provision will be made for those who wish to continue their studies beyond the required course.

Instruction is given in Vocal Music, Reading, Penmanship, Gymnastics, Crayon and Pencil Drawing, and Painting in Water Colors. Instrumental Music is not taught, but those who have given attention to it can have the use of a piano if they desire it.

FAMILY ACCOMODATIONS.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle, than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates it by its invigorating influence. But it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother the appropriate teacher. Some may inquire, "What then can be the design of this arrangement?" It may be replied, that the family work must be performed, and that young ladies engaged in study suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. Moreover, long experience has shown that this system tends to secure certain important results in the development of character. This feature of the Institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather throw before those who are seeking for them the privileges of this Seminary, additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

PUNCTUALITY, STUDY HOURS AND RECREATION.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year, is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high stand ard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for another, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should be uninterrupted. Calls and visits made by the young ladies, are confined to recreation hours, and to the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of Wednesday is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers any day or hour most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

SABBATH.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This Institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving to the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable for the scenes of the Sabbath.

EXPENSES.

Board and tuition, exclusive of fuel and lights, are $ 150 for the school year of thirty-nine weeks; $75 to be paid the first Monday of the Fall term, and $75 the first Monday of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is higher in proportion, at the rate of $4.50 per week.

Pupils coming from a distance are requested to obtain checks on some bank in Boston, Hartford, or New York. Post-Office Orders should be made payable in South Hadley.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused by delinquency in this respect.

TERMS AND VACATIONS.

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the ensuing year will be twelve weeks in length, the second term thirteen weeks, and the third, fourteen.

TO ACCEPTED CANDIDATES FOR THE ENSUING YEAR.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day (September 4.) All should come on Wednesday, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

Provide suitable clothing for the season and climate, such as flannels, woolen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, and an umbrella, also a dress for Gymnastic exercise.

It is desirable that as far as practicable you be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas, the Sabbath Hymn and Tune Book, and books of reference for the study of the Bible, such as a Commentary, Bible Dictionary, Nevin's Biblical Antiquities, and Coleman's Historical Geography of the Bible.

You are also requested to bring with you any of the regular text books in your possession, historical works, books containing selections for improvement in reading, standard poetical works, and standard musical works.

In communications by writing there is liabiiity to mistakes between inquiries about the admission of pupils, and decided applications. During the month of June a copy of this Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any fail to receive the Catalogue who suppose themselves accepted, information should be communicated immediately.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

CANDIDATES for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar and Analysis, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, through Elementary Algebra, Physical Geography, Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic,—Greenleaf's National and Eaton's are recommended, and in Mental Arithmetic, Colburn's First Lessons. It will be an advantage to those who are to enter the coming year to advance as far as possible in Latin, as the standard for admission in this study will probably be raised.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in these studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations are so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first few weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

None will be admitted to the Junior Class under sixteen years of age, and none to the Senior under eighteen.

The only time for the admission of Pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first few weeks of this term are considered as probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline or in maturity of character, may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected, extraordinary circumstances excepted, that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The whole course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first class, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued, and take up the studies of the second year, or give the time to optional studies. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress and not according to the time spent in the Institution.

Courses of Lectures are given every year in connection with various studies. The lectures on Chemistry are given by PROF.

CHARLES O. THOMPSON, of Worcester; the lectures on Natural Philosophy and Astronomy by PROF. CHARLES A. YOUNG, of Dartmouth College; the lectures on Geology by PROF. CHARLES H. HITCHCOCK, of Dartmouth College; and the lessons in Elocution, by PROF. J. W. CHURCHILL, of Andover.

Superior advantages are afforded in Greek, French, and German; and it is hoped that many will be induced to pursue these languages. Provision will be made for those who wish to continue their studies beyond the required course.

Instruction is given in Vocal Music, Reading, Penmanship, Gymnastics, Crayon and Pencil Drawing, and Painting in Water Colors. Instrumental Music is taught only in exceptional cases, but those who have given attention to it can have the use of a piano.

FAMILY ACCOMMODATIONS.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle, than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates it by its invigorating influence. Yet it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother the appropriate teacher. Some may inquire, "What can be the design of this arrangement?" It may be replied, that the family work must be performed, and that young ladies engaged in study suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. Moreover, long experience has shown that this system tends to secure certain important results in the development of character. This feature of the Institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather throw before those who are seeking for them the privileges of this Seminary, additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

PUNCTUALITY, STUDY HOURS AND RECREATION.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year, is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for another, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should be uninterrupted. Calls and visits made by the young ladies, are confined to the regular recreation hours, and the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of Wednesday is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers any day or hour most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

SABBATH.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This Institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable for the scenes of the Sabbath.

EXPENSES.

Board and tuition, exclusive of fuel and lights, are $150 for the school year of thirty-nine weeks; $75 to be paid the first Monday of the Fall term, and $75 the first Monday of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is higher in proportion, at the rate of $4.50 per week.

Pupils coming from a distance are requested to obtain checks on some bank in Boston, Hartford, or New York. Post-Office Orders should be made payable in South Hadley.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused by delinquency in this respect.

TERMS AND VACATIONS

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the ensuing year will be twelve weeks in length, the second term thirteen weeks, and the third, fourteen.

ANNIVERSARY AND PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.

The Public Examinations at the close of the present year will commence Tuesday, A. M., June 30.

The Anniversary Exercises will be Thursday, July 2, commencing at 11 o'clock, A.M. Address by Rev. SAMUEL HARRIS, D.D., of Yale College.

APPLICATIONS.

Communications relating to admission to the Seminary may be addressed to the Principal, Miss Julia E. Ward. The name, age, attainments and general characteristics of the applicant should be stated.

TO ACCEPTED CANDIDATES FOR THE ENSUING YEAR.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day (September 3.) All should come on Wednesday, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

You are expected to furnish your own towels, napkins and napkin ring, one pair of sheets and pillow cases, and one blanket; also a dessert spoon or a tea spoon. Each of these and all articles of clothing should be distinctly marked with the owner's name.

Provide suitable clothing for the season and climate, such as flannels, woolen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, and an umbrella, also a dress for Gymnastic exercises. All these articles should be brought at the beginning of the school year.

It is desirable that as far as practicable you be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas, the Sabbath Hymn and Tune Book, and books of reference for the study of the Bible, such as a Commentary, Bible Dictionary, Biblical Antiquities, and Historical Geography of the Bible.

You are also requested to bring with you any of the regular text books in your possession, historical works, books containing selections for improvement in reading, standard poetical works, and standard musical works.

Books and Stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

In communications by writing there is liability to mistakes between inquiries about the admission of pupils, and decided applications. During the month of June a copy of this Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any fail to receive the Catalogue who suppose themselves accepted, information should be communicated immediately.

All persons wishing to come to the Seminary should stop at the "Smith's Ferry" Station on the Connecticut River R. R., where stages are in waiting on the arrival of each of the trains.

Arrangements have been perfected whereby Tickets and Checks for Baggage can be obtained in New York City, Boston, Albany, and all the large towns on the Boston and Albany R. R., direct for Smith's Ferry.

The Telegraph Office is at Smith's Ferry, Mass. Any dispatches for the members of the Seminary are delivered promptly.

FORM OF A BEQUEST.

I bequeath to my executors the sum of dollars, in trust, to pay over the same in after my decease, to the person who, when the same is payable, shall act as Treasurer of the Mt. Holyoke Female Seminary, located in South Hadley, Mass., in the year eighteen hundred and thirty-seven, to be applied to the uses and purposes of said Seminary, and under the direction of the Trustees of said Seminary.

A building for Natural History and Art, has been projected, and it is hoped that the foundation will be speedily laid. Donations are solicited towards the building fund, and also contributions to the Cabinet and Art Gallery.

Friends of the Institution will find this a fitting time to bring the needs of the Seminary to the notice of men of wealth and benevolence.

Provide suitable clothing for the season and climate, such as flannels, woolen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, and an umbrella, also a dress for Gymnastic exercises. All these articles should be brought at the beginning of the school year.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

CANDIDATES for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar and Analysis, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, through Elementary Algebra, Physical Geography, Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic, — Greenleaf's National and Eaton's are recommended, and in Mental Arithmetic, Colburn's First Lessons. It will be an advantage to those who are to enter the coming year to advance as far as possible in Latin, as the standard for admission in this study will probably be raised.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in these studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations are so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first few weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

None will be admitted to the Junior Class under sixteen years of age, and none should enter the Senior Class under twenty.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first few weeks of this term are considered as probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline or in maturity of character, may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected, extraordinary circumstances excepted, that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The whole course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first class, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued, and take up the studies of the second year, or give the time to optional studies. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress and not according to the time spent in the Institution.

Colors. Instrumental Music is taught only in exceptional cases, but those who have given attention to it can have the use of a piano.

FAMILY ACCOMMODATIONS.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates it by its invigorating influence. Yet it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother the appropriate teacher. Some may inquire, "What can be the design of this arrangement?" It may be replied, that the family work must be performed, and that young ladies engaged in study suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. Moreover, long experience has shown that this system tends to secure certain important results in the development of character. This feature of the Institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather throw before those who are seeking for them the privileges of this Seminary, additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

PUNCTUALITY, STUDY HOURS AND RECREATION.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for another, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should be uninterrupted. Calls and visits made by the young ladies, are confined to the regular recreation hours, and the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of Wednesday is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution, and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers any day or hour most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

SABBATH.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This Institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable for the scenes of the Sabbath.

EXPENSES.

Board and tuition, including fuel, lights and lectures, are $175 for the school year of thirty-nine weeks; $90 to be paid the first Monday of the Fall term, and $85 the first Monday of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is higher in proportion, at the rate of $5 per week.

Pupils coming from a distance are requested to obtain checks on some bank in Boston, Hartford or New York. Post Office Orders should be made payable in South Hadley.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused by delinquency in this respect.

TERMS AND VACATIONS.

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the ensuing year will be twelve weeks in length, the second term thirteen weeks, and the third, fourteen.

ANNIVERSARY AND PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.

The Public Examinations at the close of the present year will commence Tuesday, A. M., June 29.

The Anniversary Exercises will be Thursday, July 1, commencing at 11 o'clock, A. M. Address by REV. WILLIAM ORMISTON, D.D., of New York City.

APPLICATIONS.

Communications relating to admission to the Seminary may be addressed to the Principal, Miss Julia E. Ward. The name, age, attainments and general characteristics of the applicant should be stated.

TO ACCEPTED CANDIDATES FOR THE ENSUING YEAR.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day (September 2.) All should come on Wednesday, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

You are expected to furnish your own towels, napkins and napkin ring, one pair of sheets and pillow cases, and one blanket; also a dessert spoon or a tea spoon. Each of these and all articles of clothing should be distinctly marked with the owner's full name.

Provide suitable clothing for the season and climate, such as flannels, woolen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, and an umbrella.

also a dress for Gymnastic exercises. All these articles should be brought at the beginning of the school year.

It is desirable that as far as practicable you be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas, the Sabbath Hymn and Tune Book, and books of reference for the study of the Bible, such as a Commentary, Bible Dictionary, Biblical Antiquities, and Historical Geography of the Bible.

You are also requested to bring with you any of the regular text books in your possession, historical works, books containing selections for improvement in reading, standard poetical works, and standard musical works.

Books and Stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

In communications by writing there is liability to mistakes between inquiries about the admission of pupils, and decided applications. During the month of June a copy of this Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any who suppose themselves accepted, fail to receive the Catalogue, information should be communicated immediately.

The Mt. Holyoke Seminary is located in South Hadley, Mass., not Holyoke.

All persons wishing to come to the Seminary should stop at the "Smith's Ferry" Station, on the Connecticut River R. R., where stages are in waiting on the arrival of each of the trains.

Appendix.

Terms of Admission.

CANDIDATES for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar and Analysis, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Elementary Algebra, Physical Geography, Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic. Greenleaf's National and Eaton's are recommended, and Colburn's First Lessons in Mental Arithmetic.

Candidates for 1877 should also be prepared for examination in Cornelius Nepos, or an equivalent.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in the preparatory studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations are so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first few weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first few weeks of this term are considered as probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline or in maturity of character, may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

None will be admitted to the Junior Class under sixteen years of age, and it is desirable that candidates should be seventeen or eighteen. None should enter the Senior Class under twenty.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected, extraordinary circumstances excepted, that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

Course of Instruction.

The whole course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first class, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued, and take up the studies of the second year, or give the time to optional studies. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress, and not according to the time spent in the Seminary.

Instruction is given in Vocal Music, Reading, Penmanship,

Gymnastics, Crayon and Pencil Drawing, and Painting in Water Colors. Instrumental Music is taught only in exceptional cases, but those who have given attention to it can have the use of a piano.

Family Arrangements.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

Domestic Department.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates it by its invigorating influence. Yet it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother the appropriate teacher. Some may ask the design of this arrangement. It may be replied, that the family work must be performed, and that young ladies engaged in study suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. Moreover, long experience has shown that this system tends to secure certain important results in the development of character. This feature of the institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather throw before those who are seeking for them the privileges of this Seminary, additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

Punctuality, Study Hours and Recreation.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for another, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should be uninterrupted. Calls and visits made by the young ladies, are confined to the regular recreation hours, and the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of Wednesday is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution, and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers any day or hour most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

Sabbath.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This Institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable for the scenes of the Sabbath.

Expenses.

Board and tuition, including fuel, lights and lectures, are $175 for the school year of thirty-nine weeks; $90 to be paid the first Monday of the Fall term, and $85 the first Monday of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is higher in proportion, at the rate of $5 per week.

Pupils coming from a distance are requested to obtain drafts on some bank in Boston or New York. Post Office orders should be made payable in South Hadley. It is preferred that payment should be made in checks. These should be drawn for the exact amount, and should be made payable to the Treasurer.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused by delinquency in this respect.

Terms and Vacations.

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the ensuing year will be thirteen weeks in length, the second term twelve weeks, and the third, fourteen.

Applications.

Communications relating to admission to the Seminary may be addressed to the Principal, Miss Julia E. Ward. The name, age, attainments, and general characteristics of the applicant should be stated.

To Accepted Candidates for the Ensuing Year.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day, August 31. All should come on Wednesday, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

You are expected to furnish your own towels, napkins and napkin ring, one pair of sheets and pillow cases, and one blanket; also a desert spoon and a tea spoon. Each of these, and all articles of clothing, should be distinctly marked with the owner's full name.

Provide suitable clothing for the season and climate, such as flannels, woolen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, and an umbrella; also a dress for Gymnastic exercises. All these articles should be brought at the beginning of the school year.

It is desirable that as far as practicable you be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas, "Hymns and Songs for Social and Sabbath Worship," and books of reference for the study of the Bible, such as a Commentary, Bible Dictionary, Biblical Antiquities, and Historical Geography of the Bible.

You are also requested to bring with you any of the regular text books in your possession, historical works, books containing selections for improvement in reading, standard poetical works, and standard musical works.

Books and Stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

In communications by writing there is liability to mistakes between inquiries about the admission of pupils, and decided applications. During the month of May a copy of this Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate, with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any who suppose themselves accepted fail to receive the Catalogue, information should be communicated immediately.

Terms of Admission.

CANDIDATES for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar, Green's or Clark's Analysis, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Elementary Algebra, Physical Geography, Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader, and Cornelius Nepos or an equivalent. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic. Greenleaf's National and Eaton's are recommended, and Colburn's First Lessons in Mental Arithmetic.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in the preparatory studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations are so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first few weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first few weeks of this term are considered as probationary that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline or in maturity of character, may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

None will be admitted to the Junior Class under sixteen years of age, and it is desirable that candidates should be seventeen or eighteen. None should enter the Senior Class under twenty.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected, extraordinary circumstances excepted, that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

Course of Instruction.

The regular course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first year, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued, and take up those of the second year, or give the time to optional studies. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress, and not according to the time spent in the Seminary.

Instruction is given in Vocal Music, Reading, Penmanship, Gymnastics, Crayon and Pencil Drawing, and Painting in Water Colors. Instrumental Music is taught only in exceptional cases. but those who have given attention to it can have the use of a piano.

A valuable library of ten thousand volumes is constantly available. The Lyman Williston Hall, now complete, with its lecture-rooms, laboratory, art-gallery, and cabinets, affords superior facilities for the study of science and art.

Family Arrangements.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other. and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

Domestic Department.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates it by its invigorating influence. Yet it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother the appropriate teacher. Some may ask the design of this arrangement. It may be replied, that the family work must be performed, and that young ladies engaged in study suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. Moreover, long experience has shown that this system tends to secure certain important results in the development of character. This feature of the institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather throw before those who are seeking for them the privileges of this Seminary, additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

Punctuality, Study Hours and Recreation.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for another, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should be uninterrupted. Calls and visits made by the young ladies are confined to the regular recreation hours, and the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of Wednesday is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution, and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers any day or hour most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

Sabbath.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath;

neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This Institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable for the scenes of the Sabbath.

Expenses.

Board and tuition, including fuel, lights and lectures, are $175 for the school year of thirty-eight weeks; $100 to be paid the first Monday of the Fall Term, and $75 the first Monday of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is higher in proportion, at the rate of $5 per week.

Pupils coming from a distance are requested to obtain drafts on some bank in Boston or New York. Post Office orders should be made payable in South Hadley. It is preferred that payment should be made in checks. These should be drawn for the exact amount, and should be made payable to the Treasurer.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused by delinquency in this respect.

Terms and Vacations.

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the ensuing year will be fifteen weeks in length, the second term fifteen weeks, and the third, eight weeks.

The anniversary exercises will be Thursday, June 21, commencing at 11 o'clock, A. M. Address by Prof. M. B. RIDDLE, D. D., of Hartford Theological Seminary.

Applications.

Communications relating to admission to the Seminary may be addressed to the Principal, Miss Julia E. Ward. The name, age, attainments, and general characteristics of the applicant should be stated.

To Accepted Candidates for the Ensuing Year.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day, Sept. 6. All should come on Wednesday, Sept. 5, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

You are each expected to furnish your own towels, napkins and napkin ring, one pair of sheets and pillow cases, and one blanket; also a dessert spoon and a tea spoon. Each of these, and all articles of clothing should be distinctly marked with the owner's full name.

Provide clothing suitable for the season and climate, such as flannels, woolen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, leggins, and an umbrella; also a dress for gymnastic exercises. All these articles should be brought at the beginning of the school year.

It is desirable that as far as practicable you be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas, "Hymns and Songs for Social and Sabbath Worship," and books of reference for the study of the Bible, such as a Commentary, Bible Dictionary, Biblical Antiquities, and Historical Geography of the Bible.

You are also requested to bring with you any of the regular text books in your possession, historical works, books containing selections for improvement in reading, standard poetical works, and standard musical works.

Books and Stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

In communications by writing, there is liability to mistakes between inquiries about the admission of pupils, and decided applications. During the month of May a copy of this Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any who suppose themselves accepted fail to receive the Catalogue, information should be communicated immediately.

Terms of Admission.

CANDIDATES for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar, Green's or Clark's Analysis, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Elementary Algebra, Physical Geography, Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader, and Cornelius Nepos or an equivalent. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic. Greenleaf's National and Eaton's are recommended, and Colburn's First Lessons in Mental Arithmetic.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in the preparatory studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations are so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first few weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first few weeks of this term are considered probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline, or in maturity of character, may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

None will be admitted to the Junior Class under sixteen years of age, and it is desirable that candidates should be seventeen or eighteen. None should enter the Senior Class under twenty.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected, extraordinary circumstances excepted, that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

Course of Instruction.

The regular course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first year, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued, and take up those which follow, or give the time to optional studies. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress, and not according to the time spent in the Seminary.

Instruction is given in Vocal Music, Reading, Penmanship, Gymnastics, Crayon and Pencil Drawing, and Painting in Water Colors. Instrumental Music is taught only in exceptional cases, but those who have given attention to it can have the use of a piano.

A valuable library of ten thousand volumes is constantly available. The Lyman Williston Hall, now complete, with its lecture-rooms and apparatus, its laboratory, cabinets, and art-gallery, affords superior facilities for the study of science and art.

Family Arrangements.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

Domestic Department.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied—about one hour a day—is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates it by its invigorating influence. Yet it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother the appropriate teacher. Some may ask the design of this arrangement. It may be replied, that the family work must be performed, and that young ladies engaged in study are liable to suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. Moreover, long experience has shown that this system tends to secure certain important results in the development of character. This feature of the institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather place before them additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

Punctuality, Study Hours, and Recreation.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for a second, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should be uninterrupted. Calls and visits made by the young ladies are confined to the daily recreation hours, and the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of Wednesday is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution, and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers at any time most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

Sabbath.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This Institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable for the scenes of the Sabbath.

Expenses.

Board and tuition, including steam-heating, lights, and lectures, are $175 for the school year of thirty-eight weeks; $100 to be paid the first Monday of the Fall Term, and $75 the first Monday of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is higher in proportion, at the rate of $5.50 per week.

Pupils coming from a distance are requested to obtain drafts on some bank in Boston or New York. Post Office orders should be made payable in South Hadley. It is preferred that payment should be made in checks. These should be drawn for the exact amount, and should be made payable to the Treasurer.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused when there is delinquency in this respect.

Terms and Vacations.

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the next year will be fifteen weeks in length, the second term fifteen weeks, and the third, eight weeks.

Anniversary and Public Examinations.

The Public Examinations at the close of the present year will commence Tuesday, A. M., June 18.

The anniversary exercises will be Thursday, June 20, commencing at 11 o'clock, A. M. Address by Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D., of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Applications.

Communications relating to admission to the Seminary may be addressed to the Principal, Miss Julia E. Ward. The name, age, attainments, and general characteristics of the applicant should be stated.

To Accepted Candidates.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day, Sept. 5. All should come on Wednesday, Sept. 4, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

You are each expected to furnish your own towels, napkins and napkin ring, one pair of sheets and pillow cases, and one blanket; also a dessert spoon and a tea spoon. Each of these, and all articles of clothing should be distinctly marked with the owner's full name.

Provide clothing suitable for the season and climate, such as flannels, woolen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, leggins, and a dress for gymnastic exercises: also an umbrella. All these articles should be brought at the beginning of the school year.

It is desirable to be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas, "Hymns and Songs for Social and Sabbath Worship," and books of reference for the study of the Bible, such as a Commentary, Bible Dictionary, Biblical Antiquities, and Historical Geography of the Bible.

You are also requested to bring with you any of the regular text books in your possession, historical works, books containing selections for improvement in reading, standard poetical works, and standard musical works.

Books and Stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

In communications by writing, there is liability to mistakes between inquiries about the admission of pupils, and decided applications. During the month of May a copy of this Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate, with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any who suppose themselves accepted fail to receive the Catalogue, information should be communicated immediately.

Mount Holyoke Seminary is located in South Hadley, Mass., not Holyoke.

All persons wishing to come to the Seminary should stop at the Smith's Ferry Station, on the Connecticut River R. R., where stages are in waiting on the arrival of each of the trains.

Tickets and checks for baggage can be obtained in New York City, Boston, Albany, and all the large towns on the Boston and Albany R. R., direct for Smith's Ferry.

The telegraph office is at South Hadley, in the immediate vicinity of the Seminary.

Form of a Bequest.

I bequeath to my executors the sum of dollars, in trust, to pay over the same in after my decease, to the person who, when the same is payable, shall act as Treasurer of the Mount Holyoke Female Seminary, founded in South Hadley, Mass., in the year eighteen hundred and thirty-seven; to be applied to the uses and purposes of said Seminary, and under the direction of the Trustees of said Seminary.

MOUNT HOLYOKE SEMINARY.

Location and Grounds.

The Seminary stands on the east side of the village street of South Hadley, not far from the church. Its buildings are but a little removed from the well-shaded highway, the grounds lying chiefly in the rear, and sloping at length to the edge of a picturesque stream, which broadens into a pond just below. The brook is crossed by a rustic foot-bridge: and beyond rises a well-rounded and lofty hill, from whose slope the accompanying view was taken.

The grounds now comprise about twenty-one acres, of which six or eight acres lie upon the hill. The original lot is bordered by a fine belt of trees planted more than thirty years ago. These may be noticed in the engraving. The wood-cuts on the following page give some favorite views along the stream.

Buildings.

The various buildings have been erected or enlarged from time to time, as the growth of the institution has required. The main edifice, which fronts west, has at each end a wing extending eastward; the extremities of the two wings are connected by the gymnasium, thus enclosing a quadrangle.

The library,—a fire-proof building directly north of the main edifice, and connected with it, as shown in the frontispiece,—was completed in 1870. The interior is handsomely finished in native woods; the bookcases and other furniture are of carved black walnut. The alcoves are so arranged as to form cozy nooks for readers, to whom the library is open thirteen or fourteen hours each day. The present number of volumes is over ten thousand, and these having been carefully selected with reference to the courses of study, a wide range of authorities can be consulted, on whatever

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

CANDIDATES for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar, Green's or Clark's Analysis, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Elementary Algebra, Physical Geography, Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader, and Cornelius Nepos or an equivalent. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic. Greenleaf's National and Eaton's are recommended, and Colburn's First Lessons in Mental Arithmetic.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in the preparatory studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations are so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first few weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first few weeks of this term are considered probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline, or in maturity of character, may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

None will be admitted to the Junior Class under sixteen years of age, and it is desirable that candidates should be seventeen or eighteen. None should enter the Senior Class under twenty.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected, extraordinary circumstances excepted, that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

Course of Instruction.

The regular course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first year, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued, and take up those which follow, or give the time to optional studies. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress, and not according to the time spent in the Seminary.

Instruction is given in Vocal Music, Reading, Penmanship, Gymnastics, Crayon and Pencil Drawing, and Painting in Water Colors. Instrumental Music is taught only in exceptional cases, but those who have given attention to it can have the use of a piano.

A valuable library of ten thousand volumes is constantly available. The Lyman Williston Hall, now complete, with its lecture-rooms and apparatus, its laboratory, cabinets, and art-gallery, affords superior facilities for the study of science and art.

Family Arrangements.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

Domestic Department.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied—about one hour a day—is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates it by its invigorating influence. Yet it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother the appropriate teacher. Some may ask the design of this arrangement. It may be replied that the family work must be performed, and that young ladies engaged in study are liable to suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. Moreover, long experience has shown that this system tends to secure certain important results in the development of character. This feature of the institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather place before them additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

Punctuality, Study Hours, and Recreation.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for a second, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should not be interrupted. Calls and visits made by the young ladies are confined to the daily recreation hours, and the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of Wednesday is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers at any time most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

Sabbath.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This Institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable for the scenes of the Sabbath.

Expenses.

Board and tuition, including steam-heating, lights, and lectures, are $175 for the school year of thirty-eight weeks; $100 to be paid the first Monday of the Fall Term, and $75 the first Monday of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is higher in proportion, at the rate of $5.50 per week.

Pupils coming from a distance are requested to obtain drafts on some bank in Boston or New York. Post Office orders should be made payable in South Hadley. It is preferred that payment should be made in checks. These should be drawn for the exact amount, and should be made payable to the Treasurer.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused when there is delinquency in this respect.

Terms and Vacations.

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the next year will be fifteen weeks in length, the second term thirteen weeks, and the third, ten weeks.

The Anniversary exercises will be Thursday, June 26, commencing at 11 o'clock, A. M. Address by Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D., of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Applications.

Communications relating to admission to the Seminary may be addressed to the Principal, Miss Julia E. Ward. The name, age, attainments, and general characteristics of the applicant should be stated.

To Accepted Candidates.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested, to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day, Sept. 4. All should come on Wednesday, Sept. 3, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

You are each expected to furnish your own towels, napkins and napkin ring, one pair of sheets and pillow cases, and one pair of blankets; also a dessert spoon and a tea spoon. Each of these, and all articles of clothing should be distinctly marked with the owner's full name.

Provide clothing suitable for the season and climate, such as flannels, woolen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, leggins, and a dress for gymnastic exercises: also an umbrella. All these articles should be brought at the beginning of the school year.

It is desirable to be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas, "Hymns and Songs for Social and Sabbath Worship," and books of reference for the study of the Bible, such as a Commentary, Bible Dictionary, Biblical Antiquities, and Historical Geography of the Bible.

You are also requested to bring with you any of the regular text books in your possession, historical works, books containing selections for improvement in reading, standard poetical works, and standard musical works.

Books and stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

In communications by writing, there is a liability to mistakes between inquiries about the admission of pupils, and decided applications. During the month of May a copy of this Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate, with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any who suppose themselves accepted fail to receive the Catalogue, information should be communicated immediately.

subject. Besides various rare work of early English writers, the library includes nearly one thousand volumes in foreign languages, chiefly French, German, Latin, and Greek. The scientific department contains many costly illustrated works, and there is a valuable collection of books on art.

The Lyman Williston Hall, finished in 1876, stands north-east of the other buildings, surrounded by a spacious lawn. It contains large and well-appointed rooms for lectures and recitations, a chemical laboratory for practical work, and a valuable philosophical apparatus. The study of Physiology is aided by a manikin and various models. The geological department has the university set of Prof. Ward's casts, as well as an extensive collection of fossil foot-prints. The engravings on page 19 show the main staircase and an alcove in the zoological cabinet.

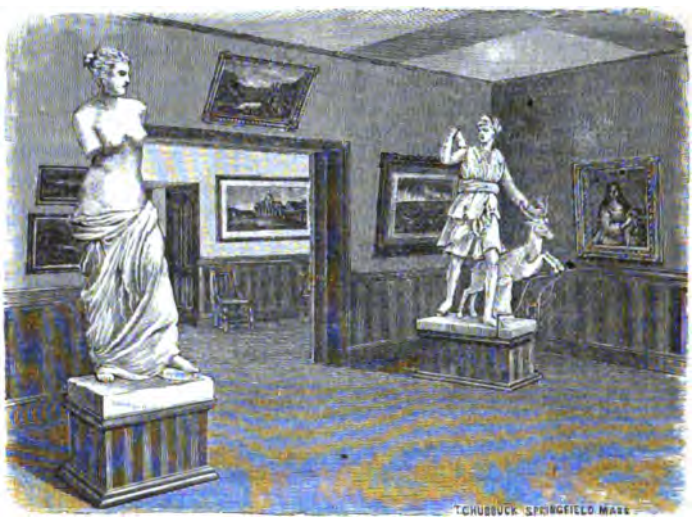
The art gallery occupies the entire upper floor of this building.

including a large central apartment, with several adjacent rooms. Among its treasures are Bierstadt's painting of the "Hetch Hetchie Cañon," "Leonardo da Vinci and his pupils," by Edwin White, of the National Academy, with studies and cartoons by the same artist; and pictures by other well-known American painters. The old masters are represented by fine copies of Murillo's "Immaculate Conception," from the Royal Gallery at Madrid; of Raphael's "Transfiguration," and others of less note. Casts of antique statues and busts, numerous photographs—many taken from the originals—together with coins and bronzes, further illustrate the history of art.

Various improvements are made from year to year, in the different departments of the establishment. Among the most recent is an Artesian well, which supplies an abundance of pure water, from a depth of 450 feet.



TERMS OF ADMISSION.

CANDIDATES for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar, Green's or Clark's Analysis, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Olney's Complete School Algebra, or an equivalent, Physical Geography, Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader, and Cornelius Nepos or an equivalent. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic. Greenleaf's National and Eaton's are recommended, and Colburn's First Lessons in Mental Arithmetic.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in the preparatory studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations are so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first few weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first few weeks of this term are considered probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline, or in maturity of character, may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

While candidates are admitted to the Junior Class at sixteen years of age, it is desirable that they should be seventeen or eighteen. None should enter the Senior Class under twenty.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected, extraordinary circumstances excepted, that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

Course of Instruction.

The regular course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first year, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued, and take up those which follow, or give the time to optional studies. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress, and not according to the time spent in the Seminary.

Those who wish to make Instrumental Music a specialty can have instruction, at the rate of $15 for twenty lessons, not including piano. Others who desire to practice can have the use of an instrument.

Family Arrangements.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

Domestic Department.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied—about one hour a day—is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates it by its invigorating influence. Yet it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother the appropriate teacher. Some may ask the design of this arrangement. It may be replied that the family work must be performed, and that young ladies engaged in study are liable to suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. Moreover, long experience has shown that this system tends to secure certain important results in the development of character. This feature of the institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather place before them additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

Punctuality, Study Hours, and Recreation.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for a second, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should not be interrupted. Calls and visits made by the young ladies are confined to the daily recreation hours, and the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of Wednesday is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers at any time most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

Sabbath.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This Institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable for the scenes of the Sabbath.

Expenses.

Board and tuition, including steam-heating, lights, and lectures, are $175 for the school year of thirty-eight weeks; $100 to be paid the first Monday of the Fall Term, and $75 the first Monday of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is higher in proportion, at the rate of $5.50 per week.

It is preferred that payments should be made in checks, on some bank in Boston or New York. These should be drawn for the exact amount, and should be made payable to the Treasurer. Post-Office orders, etc., should be made payable in South Hadley.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused when there is delinquency in this respect.

Terms and Vacations.

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the next year will be fifteen weeks in length, the second term eleven weeks, and the third twelve weeks.

FALL TERM begins	Thursday, Sept. 9, 1880.
WINTER VACATION begins	Wednesday, Dec. 22, 1880.
WINTER TERM begins	Friday, Dec. 31, 1880.
SPRING VACATION begins	Thursday, Mar. 17, 1881.
SPRING TERM begins	Thursday, Mar. 31, 1881.
SUMMER VACATION begins	Friday, June 24, 1881.

Location and Grounds.

The Seminary stands on the east side of the village street of South Hadley, not far from the church. Its buildings are but a little removed from the well-shaded highway, the grounds lying chiefly in the rear, and sloping at length to the edge of a picturesque stream, which broadens into a pond just below. The brook is crossed by a rustic foot-bridge; and beyond rises a well-rounded and lofty hill, from whose slope the accompanying view was taken.

The grounds now comprise about twenty-four acres, of which six or eight acres lie upon the hill. The original lot is bordered by a fine belt of trees planted more than thirty years ago. These may be noticed in the engraving. The wood-cuts on the following page give some favorite views along the stream.

Buildings.

The various buildings have been erected or enlarged from time to time, as the growth of the institution has required. The main edifice, which fronts west, has at each end a wing extending eastward; the extremities of the two wings are connected by the gymnasium, thus enclosing a quadrangle.

The Library,—a fire-proof building directly north of the main edifice, and connected with it, as shown in the frontispiece,—was completed in 1870. The interior is handsomely finished in native woods; the bookcases and other furniture are of carved black walnut. The alcoves are so arranged as to form cozy nooks for readers, to whom the library is open thirteen or fourteen hours each day. The present number of volumes is over ten thousand, and these having been carefully selected with reference to the courses of study, a wide range of authorities can be consulted, on whatever subject. Besides various rare works of early English writers, the library includes nearly one thousand volumes in foreign languages, chiefly French, German, Latin, and Greek. The scientific department contains many costly illustrated works, and there is a valuable collection of books on art.

The Lyman Williston Hall, finished in 1876, stands northeast of the other buildings, surrounded by a spacious lawn. It contains large and well-appointed rooms for lectures and recitations, a chemical laboratory for practical work, and a valuable philosophical apparatus. The study of Physiology is aided by a manikin and various models. The geological department has the university set of Prof. Ward's casts, as well as an extensive collection of fossil footprints. The engravings on page 20 show the main staircase and an alcove in the zoological cabinet.

The art gallery occupies the entire upper floor of this building, including a large central apartment, with several adjacent rooms Among its treasures are Bierstadt's painting of the "Hetch Hetchie Cañon," "Leonardo da Vinci and his pupils," by Edwin White, of the National Academy, with studies and cartoons by the same artist; and pictures by other well-known American painters. The old masters are represented by fine copies of Murillo's "Immaculate Conception," from the Royal Gallery at Madrid; of Raphael's "Transfiguration," and others of less note. Casts of antique statues and busts, numerous photographs—many taken from the originals—and engravings, together with coins and bronzes, further illustrate the history of art.

Various improvements are made from year to year, in the different departments of the establishment. Among the most recent are an Artesian well, which supplies an abundance of pure water, from a depth of 450 feet, and a passenger elevator.

An astronomical observatory is in process of erection, and will be ready for use the current year. It will contain a new telescope with an eight-inch object glass; also, a transit instrument, astronomical clock, and other appliances. This building, with its equipment and also the lot on which it stands, is the gift of A. L. Williston, Esq., of Northampton, in memory of his son, JOHN PAYSON WILLISTON.

Terms of Admission.

Candidates for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar, Green's or Clark's Analysis, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Olney's Complete School Algebra, or an equivalent. Physical Geography, Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader, and Cornelius Nepos, or an equivalent. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic. Greenleaf's National and Eaton's are recommended, and Colburn's First Lessons in Mental Arithmetic.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in the preparatory studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations are so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first few weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first few weeks of this term are considered probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline, or in maturity of character, may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

While candidates are admitted to the Junior Class at sixteen years of age, it is desirable that they should be seventeen or eighteen. None should enter the Senior Class under twenty.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected, extraordinary circumstances excepted, that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

Course of Instruction.

The regular course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first year, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued, and take up those which follow, or give the time to optional studies. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress, and not according to the time spent in the seminary.

Those who wish to make Instrumental Music a specialty can have instruction at the rate of $15 for twenty lessons, not including piano. Others who desire to practice can have the use of an instrument on moderate terms.

Family Arrangements.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everthing relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

Domestic Department.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied —about one hour a day—is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates it by its invigorating influence. Yet it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother the appropriate teacher. Some may ask the design of this arrangement. It may be replied that the family work must be performed, and that young ladies engaged in study are liable to suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. Moreover, long experience has shown that this system tends to secure certain results in the development of character. This feature of the institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather place before them additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

Punctuality, Study Hours, and Recreation.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for a second, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should not be interrupted. Calls and visits made by the young ladies are confined to the daily recreation hours, and the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of Wednesday is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers at any time most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

Sabbath.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This Institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a great measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable for the scenes of the Sabbath.

Expenses.

Board and tuition, including steam-heating, lights, and lectures, are $175 for the school year of thirty-eight weeks; $100 to be paid the first Monday of the Fall Term, and $75 the first Monday of the second term. No deduction is made for a short absence. In case of protracted absence, the charge is higher in proportion, at the rate of $5.50 per week, for the time spent in the Institution.

It is preferred that payments should be made in checks, on some bank in Boston or New York. These should be drawn for the exact amount, and should be made payable to the Treasurer.

Post-Office orders, etc., should be made payable in South Hadley.

It is important that the Term Bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused when there is delinquency in this respect.

Terms and Vacations.

The year is divided into three terms. The first term of the next year will be fifteen weeks in length, the second term eleven weeks, and the third twelve weeks.

FALL TERM begins	Thursday, Sept. 8, 1881.
WINTER VACATION, begins	Thursday, Dec. 22, 1881.

Anniversary and Public Examinations.

The Public Examinations at the close of the present year will commence Tuesday, A. M., June 21.

The Anniversary exercises will be Thursday, June 23, commencing at 11 o'clock, A. M. Address by Hon. Almon Tourgee, of Philadelphia.

Applications.

Communications relating to admission to the Seminary may be addressed to the Principal, Miss Julia E. Ward. The name, age, attainments, and general characteristics of the applicant should be stated.

To Accepted Candidates.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day, Sept. 8. All should come on Wednesday, Sept. 7, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

You are each expected to furnish your own towels, napkins and napkin ring, one pair of sheets and pillow cases, and one pair of blankets; also two tea spoons. Each of these, and all articles of clothing should be distinctly marked with the owner's full name.

Provide clothing suitable for the season and climate, such as flannels, woolen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, leggins, and a dress for gymnastic exercises; also an umbrella. All these articles should be brought at the beginning of the school year.

It is desirable to be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas. Books of reference for Bible study will be useful, especially a Bible Dictionary.

You are also requested to bring with you any of the regular text books in your possession, historical works, books containing selections for improvement in reading, standard poetical works, and standard musical works.

Books and stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

In communications by writing, there is a liability to mistakes between inquiries about the admission of pupils, and decided applications. During the month of May a copy of the Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate, with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any who suppose themselves accepted fail to receive this Catalogue, information should be communicated immediately.

MOUNT HOLYOKE SEMINARY.

LOCATION AND GROUNDS.

The Seminary stands on the east side of the village street of South Hadley, not far from the church. Its buildings are but a little removed from the well-shaded highway, the grounds lying chiefly in the rear, and sloping at length to the edge of a picturesque stream, which broadens into a pond just below. The brook is crossed by a rustic foot-bridge; and beyond rises a well-rounded and lofty hill, from whose slope the accompanying view was taken.

The grounds now comprise about fifty acres, of which about thirty acres lie upon the hill. The original lot is bordered by a fine belt of trees planted more than thirty years ago. These may be noticed in the engraving. The wood-cuts on pages 20 and 21 give some favorite views along the stream.

BUILDINGS.

The various buildings have been erected or enlarged from time to time, as the growth of the institution has required. The main edifice, which fronts west, has at each end a wing extending eastward; the extremities of the two wings are connected by the gymnasium, thus enclosing a quadrangle.

The Library,—a fire-proof building directly north of the main edifice, and connected with it, as shown in the frontispiece,—was completed in 1870. The interior is handsomely finished in native woods; the bookcases and other furniture are of carved black walnut. The alcoves are so arranged as to form cozy nooks for readers, to whom the library is open thirteen or fourteen hours each day. The present number of volumes is over ten thousand, and as these have been carefully selected with reference to the courses of study, a wide range of authorities can be consulted, on whatever subject. Besides various rare works of early English writers, the library includes nearly one thousand volumes in foreign languages, chiefly French, German, Latin, and Greek. The scientific department contains many costly illustrated works, and there is a valuable collection of books on art.

The Lyman Williston Hall, finished in 1876, stands north east of the other buildings, surrounded by a spacious lawn. It contains large and well-appointed rooms for lectures and recitations, a chemical laboratory for practical work, and a valuable philosophical apparatus. The study of Physiology is aided by a manikin and various models. The geological department has the university set of Prof. Ward's casts, as well as an extensive collection of fossil foot-prints.

The art gallery occupies the entire upper floor of this building, including a large central apartment, with several adjacent rooms. Among its treasures are Bierstadt's painting of the "Hetch Hetchie Cañon," Leonardo da Vinci and his pupils," by Edwin White, of the National Academy, with studies and cartoons by the same artist; and pictures by other well-known American painters. The old masters are represented by fine copies of Murillo's "Immaculate Conception," from the Royal Gallery at Madrid; of Raphael's "Transfiguration," and others of less note. Casts of antique statues and busts, numerous photographs—many taken from the originals—and engravings, together with coins and bronzes, further illustrate the history of art.

Various improvements are made from year to year, in the different departments of the establishment Among the most recent are an Artesian well, which supplies an abundance of pure water, from a depth of 450 feet; and a passenger elevator. The grounds have been enlarged by the addition of some twenty-five acres lying on Prospect Hill. This tract has been named Goodnow Park, in honor of the donor, Hon. E. A. Goodnow of Worcester.

An astronomical observatory was completed in June, 1881. It contains a new telescope with an eight-inch object glass ; also, a transit instrument, astronomical clock, and other appliances. This building, with its equipment and also the lot on which it stands, is the gift of A. L. Williston, Esq., of Northampton, in memory of his son, JOHN PAYSON WILLISTON.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the Junior Class are examined in English Grammar, Green's or Clark's Analysis, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Olney's Complete School Algebra or an equivalent, Physical Geography, Harkness' Latin Grammar and Latin Reader, and Cornelius Nepos, or an equivalent. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in Arithmetic. Greenleaf's National and Eaton's are recommended, and Colburn's First Lessons in Mental Arithmetic.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in the preparatory studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations are so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first few weeks after the opening of the school year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this, who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first few weeks of this term are considered probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline, or in maturity of character, may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

While candidates are admitted to the Junior Class at sixteen years of age, it is desirable that they should be seventeen or eighteen. None should enter the Senior Class under twenty.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected, extraordinary circumstances excepted, that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the Institution.

EXPENSES.

Board and tuition, including steam-heating, lights and lectures, are $175 for the school year of thirty-eight weeks ; $100 to be paid the first Monday of the fall term, and $75 the first Monday of the second term. If, for any reason, the pupil should remain but a part of the year, the charge will be higher,—at the rate of $5.50 per week, for the time spent at the institution. No deduction is made for temporary absences.

It is preferred that payment should be made in checks, on some bank in Boston or New York. These should be drawn for the exact amount, and should be made payable to the Treasurer.

It is important that the term bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused when there is delinquency in this respect.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The regular course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first year, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued, and take up those which follow, or give the time to optional studies. The studies of the course will be taken in their order, and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress, and not according to the time spent in the seminary.

Those who wish to make Instrumental Music a specialty can have instruction at the rate of $15 for twenty lessons, not including piano. Others who desire to practice can have the use of an instrument on moderate terms.

FAMILY ARRANGEMENTS.

All the teachers and pupils board in the Institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort and happiness of the household. Everything relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family circle than of the common restrictive rules of the school system.

DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied—about one hour a day—is so small that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates it by its invigorating influence. Yet it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important, but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother the appropriate teacher. Some may ask the design of this arrangement. It may be replied that the family work must be performed, and that young ladies engaged in study are liable to suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. Moreover, long experience has shown that this system tends to secure certain results in the development of character. This feature of the institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather place before them additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

PUNCTUALITY, STUDY HOURS, AND RECREATION.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for a second, and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study hours should not be interrupted. Calls and visits made by the young ladies are confined to the daily recreation hours, and the regular recreation day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of Wednesday is not recreation time.

Friends of the Institution, and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers at any time most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

SABBATH.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term time. This Institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence, is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving the Institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent in a measure the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable for the scenes of the Sabbath.

MT. HOLYOKE SEMINARY.

LOCATION AND GROUNDS.

THE Seminary stands on the east side of the village street of South Hadley, not far from the church. Its buildings are but a little removed from the well-shaded highway; the grounds lying chiefly in the rear, and sloping at length to the edge of a picturesque stream, which broadens into a pond just below. The brook is crossed by a rustic foot-bridge; and beyond rises a well-rounded and lofty hill, from whose slope the view facing p. 25 was taken.

The grounds now comprise about fifty acres, of which some thirty acres lie upon the hill. The original lot is bordered by a fine belt of trees, planted more than thirty years ago, which may be noticed in the steel engraving.

BUILDINGS.

The various buildings have been erected or enlarged, from time to time, as the growth of the institution has required. The main edifice, which fronts west, has at each end a wing extending eastward: the extremities of the two wings are connected by the gymnasium, thus enclosing a quadrangle.

The library — a fire-proof building directly north of the main edifice, and connected with it, as shown in the frontispiece — was completed in 1870. The interior is handsomely finished in native woods. The bookcases and other furniture are of carved black walnut. The alcoves are so arranged as to form cosey nooks for readers, to whom the library is open thirteen or fourteen hours each day. The present number of volumes is over ten thousand, and, as these have been carefully selected with reference to the courses of study, a wide range of authorities can be consulted on whatever subject. Besides various rare works of early English writers, the library includes nearly one thousand volumes in foreign languages, chiefly French, German, Latin, and Greek. The scientific department contains many costly illustrated works, and there is a valuable collection of books on art.

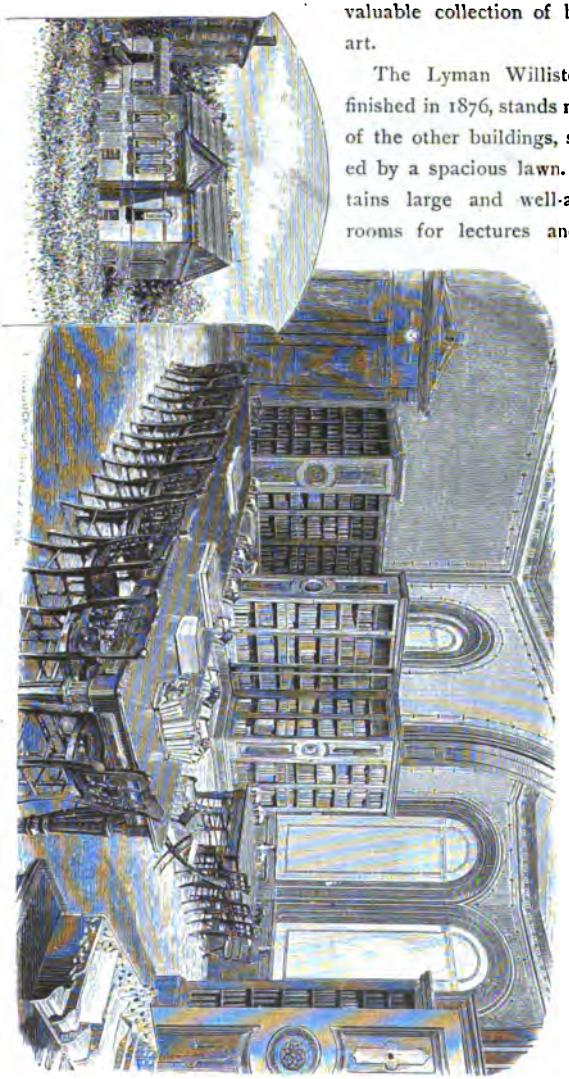
The Lyman Williston Hall, finished in 1876, stands north-east of the other buildings, surrounded by a spacious lawn. It contains large and well-appointed rooms for lectures and recitations, a chemical laboratory for practical work, and a valuable philosophical apparatus. The study of physiology is aided by a manikin and various models.



VIEW IN THE LIBRARY.

The geological department has the university set of Professor Ward's casts, as well as an extensive collection of fossil footprints.

The art gallery occupies the entire upper floor of this building, including a large central apartment, with several adjacent rooms. Among its treasures are Bierstadt's painting of the "Hetch Hetchie Cañon," "Leonardo da Vinci and his Pupils," by Edwin White of the National Academy, with studies and cartoons by the same artist, and pictures by other well-known American painters. The old masters are represented by fine copies of Murillo's "Immaculate Conception" from the Royal Gallery at Madrid, of Raphael's "Transfiguration," Domenichino's "Last Communion of St. Jerome," and others of less note. Casts of antique statues and busts, numerous photographs and engravings, together with coins and bronzes, further illustrate the history of art.

Various improvements are made from year to year in the different departments of the establishment. Among the more recent are a passenger-elevator, and an artesian well, which supplies an abundance of pure water from a depth of four hundred and fifty feet. The grounds have been enlarged by the addition of some twenty-five acres lying on Prospect Hill. This tract has been named Goodnow Park, in honor of the donor, Hon. E. A. Goodnow of Worcester.

An astronomical observatory was completed in June, 1881. It contains a new telescope with an eight-inch object-glass, also a transit instrument, astronomical clock, and other appliances. This building with its equipment, as well as the lot on which it stands, is the gift of A. L. Williston, Esq., of Northampton, in memory of his son, JOHN PAYSON WILLISTON.

ASTRONOMICAL OBSERVATORY.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the junior class are examined in English Grammar, Green's or Clark's Analysis, Modern Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Olney's Complete School Algebra or an equivalent, Physical Geography, Harkness's Latin Grammar and Latin Reader, and Cornelius Nepos or an equivalent. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in arithmetic. Greenleaf's National, and Eaton's, are recommended, and Colburn's First Lessons in Mental Arithmetic.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in the preparatory studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations are so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first few weeks after the opening of the school-year. No one will be expected to remain longer than this who does not prove herself well acquainted with the preparatory studies.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first few weeks of this term are considered probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline, or in maturity of character, may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

While candidates are admitted to the junior class at sixteen years of age, it is desirable that they should be seventeen or eighteen. None should enter the senior class under twenty.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected, extraordinary circumstances excepted, that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the institution.

EXPENSES.

Board and tuition, including steam-heating, lights, and lectures, are $175 for the school-year, $100 to be paid the first Monday of the fall term, and $75 the first Monday of the second term. If, for any reason, the pupil should remain but a part of the year, the charge will be higher, — at the rate of $5.50 per week for the time spent at the institution. No deduction is made for temporary absences.

It is preferred that payment should be made in checks, on some bank in Boston or New York. These should be drawn for the exact amount, and should be made payable to the treasurer.

It is important that the term-bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused when there is a delinquency in this respect.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The regular course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first year, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued, and take up those which follow, or give the time to optional studies. The studies of the course will be taken in their order; and pupils will be advanced from

Though these studies cannot be substituted for the regular curriculum, an additional diploma is given to any who complete either the Greek, German, or French course.

Instruction is given in Vocal Music, Reading, Penmanship, Gymnastics, Crayon and Pencil Drawing, and Painting in Water-colors, without extra charge. Those who wish to make Instrumental Music a specialty can have instruction at the rate of $15 for twenty lessons, not including piano. Others who desire to practise can have the use of an instrument on moderate terms.

FAMILY ARRANGEMENTS.

All the teachers and pupils board in the institution. The family and school are so organized that they form constituent parts of the same whole, each advancing the interests of the other, and both uniting to promote the improvement, comfort, and happiness of the household. Every thing relative to the improvement and division of time, to giving and receiving instruction, and to social intercourse, partakes more of the simplicity of the family-circle than of the common restrictive rules of the school-system.

DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT.

All the members of the school aid to some extent in the domestic work of the family. The portion of time thus occupied — about one hour a day — is so small, that it does not retard their progress in study, but rather facilitates it by its invigorating influence. Yet it is no part of the design of this Seminary to teach young ladies domestic work. This branch of education is exceedingly important; but a literary institution is not the place to gain it. Home is the proper place for the daughters of our country to be taught on this subject, and the mother the appropriate teacher. Some may ask the design of this arrangement. It may be replied, that the family work must be performed, and that young ladies engaged in study are liable to suffer much in their vigor and intellectual energy, and in their future health, for want of exercise. Moreover, long experience has shown that this system tends to secure valuable results in the development of character. This feature of the institution will not relieve mothers from the responsibility of giving their daughters a thorough domestic education; but it will rather place before them additional motives to be faithful in this important duty.

PUNCTUALITY, STUDY-HOURS, AND RECREATION.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study-hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for a second; and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study-hours should not be interrupted. Calls and visits made by the young ladies are confined to the daily recreation-hours and the regular recreation-day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation. The evening of Wednesday is not recreation-time.

Friends of the institution, and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers at any time most convenient for them, the Sabbath excepted.

SABBATH.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls on the Sabbath; neither should they spend a single Sabbath from the Seminary during term-time. This institution is the result of benevolent efforts, and that it will be decidedly religious in its influence is the reasonable expectation of its friends. In using the appropriate means of giving the institution such an influence, the Sabbath is far the most important day. While absence on any other day is greatly to be regretted, it is far more so on the Sabbath. However great may be its privileges in any other spot, the excitement of visiting, of meeting friends, and of home scenes, will prevent, in a measure, the benefit that may be derived from a proper observance of the day. The place of weekly labors is the most favorable for the scenes of the Sabbath.

APPLICATIONS.

Communications relating to admission to the Seminary may be addressed to the Principal, Miss Julia E. Ward. The name, age, attainments, and general characteristics of the applicant, should be stated.

TO ACCEPTED CANDIDATES.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day, Sept. 13. All should come on Wednesday, Sept. 12, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

You are each expected to furnish your own towels, napkins and napkin-ring, two pairs of sheets and pillow-cases, and one pair of blankets, also two teaspoons. Each of these, and all articles of clothing, should be distinctly marked with the owner's full name.

Provide clothing suitable for the season and climate; such as flannels, woollen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, leggings, and a dress for gymnastic exercises, also an umbrella. All these articles should be brought at the beginning of the school-year. The gymnastic dress may be of flannel (dark blue is preferred), made with blouse-waist, sleeves full, belt loose, and the hem of the skirt seven inches from the floor.

It is desirable to be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas. Books of reference for Bible study will be useful, especially a Bible Dictionary.

Books and stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

During the month of May a copy of the Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate, with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any who suppose themselves accepted fail to receive this Catalogue, information should be communicated immediately.

MT. HOLYOKE SEMINARY.

LOCATION AND GROUNDS.

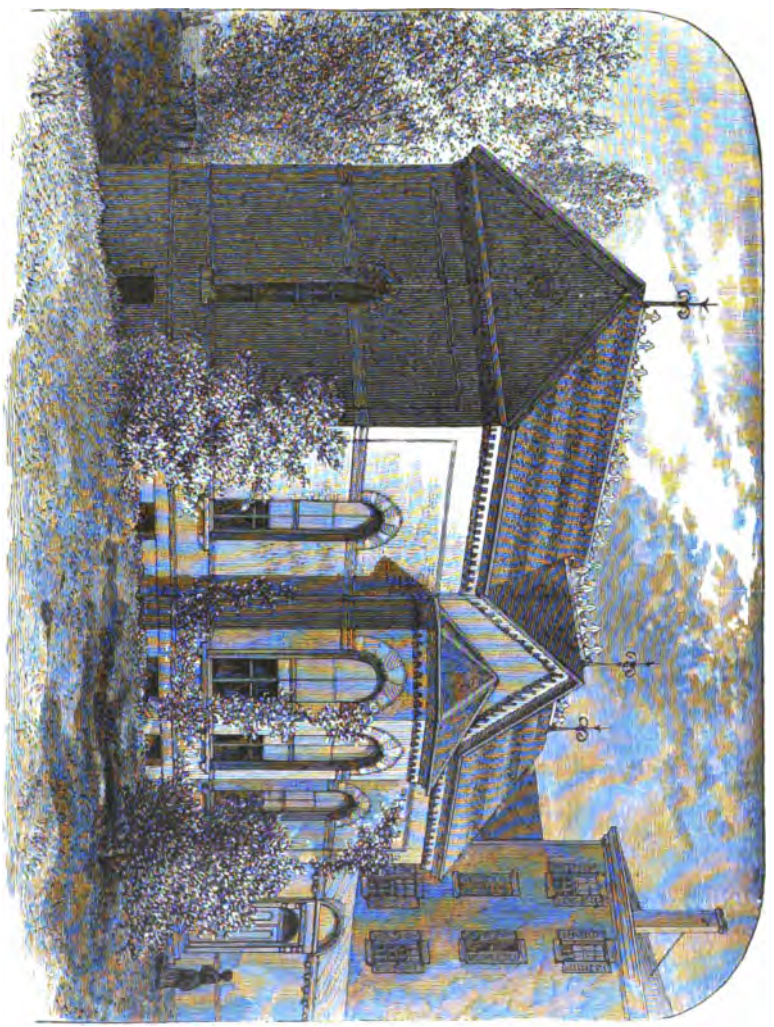
THE Seminary stands on the east side of the village street of South Hadley, not far from the church. Its buildings are but a little removed from the well-shaded highway; the grounds lying chiefly in the rear, and sloping eastward to the edge of a picturesque stream, which broadens into a pond just below. Beyond the stream, which is crossed by a rustic foot-bridge, rises Prospect Hill, commanding delightful views. A large part of the hill, as well as the pond lying at its foot, now belongs to the Seminary, by the gift of Hon. E. A. Goodnow of Worcester, and bears the name of Goodnow Park. In 1883, the estate adjoining the Seminary on the north was added, including about seven acres, and a large dwelling-house, now used for music rooms, and for classes in drawing.

BUILDINGS.

The various buildings have been erected or enlarged, from time to time, as the growth of the institution has required. The main edifice, which fronts west, has at each end a wing extending eastward; the extremities of the two wings are connected by the gymnasium, thus enclosing a quadrangle.

The library — a fire-proof building directly north of the main edifice, and connected with it, as shown in the frontispiece — was completed in 1870. The interior is handsomely finished in native woods. The bookcases and other furniture are of carved black walnut. The alcoves are so arranged as to form cosey nooks for readers, to whom the library is open thirteen or fourteen hours each day. The present number of volumes is eleven thousand, and, as these have been carefully selected with reference to the courses of study, a wide range of authorities can be consulted on whatever subject. Besides various rare works of early English writers, the library includes nearly one thousand volumes in foreign languages, chiefly French, German, Latin, and Greek. The scientific department contains many costly illustrated works, and there is a valuable collection of books on art.

THE LIBRARY.



The Lyman Williston Hall, finished in 1876, stands north-east of the other buildings, surrounded by a spacious lawn. It contains large and well-appointed rooms for lectures and recitations, a chemical laboratory for practical work, and a valuable philosophical apparatus. The study of physiology is aided by a manikin and various models. The geological department has the university set of Professor Ward's casts, as well as an extensive collection of fossil footprints.

The art gallery occupies the entire upper floor of this building, including a large central apartment, with several adjacent rooms. Among its treasures are Bierstadt's painting of the "Hetch Hetchie Cañon;" "Leonardo da Vinci and his Pupils," by Edwin White of the National Academy, with studies and cartoons by the same artist; the "Conway Meadows," by George Inness, and pictures by other well-known American painters. The old masters are represented by fine copies of Murillo's "Immaculate Conception" from the Royal Gallery at Madrid, of Raphael's "Transfiguration," Domenichino's "Last Communion of St. Jerome," Titian's "Assumption," and others of less note. Casts of antique statues and busts, photographs and engravings, coins and bronzes, further illustrate the history of art.

ALCOVE IN ZOÖLOGICAL CABINET.

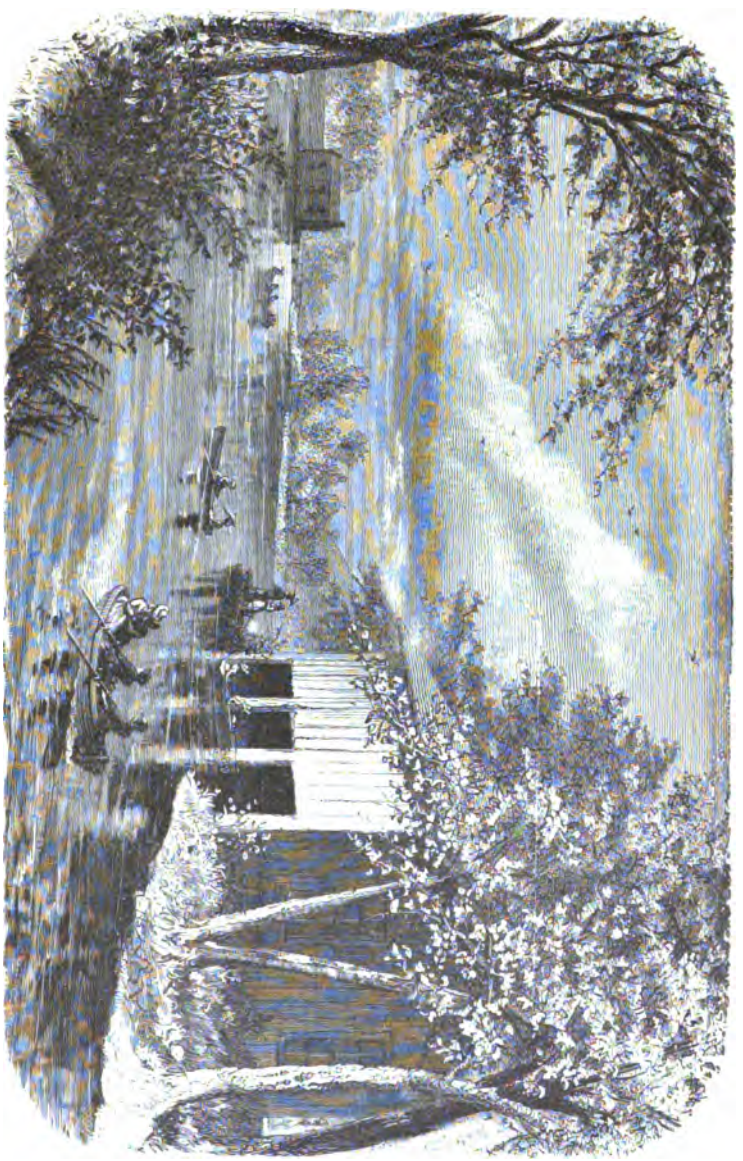
Various improvements are made from year to year in the different departments of the establishment. Among the more recent are a passenger-elevator, and an artesian well, which supplies an abundance of pure water from a depth of four hundred and fifty feet.



VIEW NEAR THE BOAT-HOUSE.

An astronomical observatory was completed in June, 1881. It contains a new telescope with an eight-inch object-glass, also a meridian circle, astronomical clock, chronograph, sextant, spectroscope, and other appliances. This building with its equipment, as well as the lot on which it stands, is the gift of A. L. Williston, Esq., of Northampton, in memory of his son, JOHN PAYSON WILLISTON.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the junior class are examined in English Grammar and Analysis, Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Olney's Complete School Algebra or an equivalent, Physical Geography, Harkness's Latin Grammar and Latin Reader, and Cornelius Nepos or an equivalent. In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in arithmetic. Greenleaf's National, and Eaton's, are recommended, and Colburn's First Lessons in Mental Arithmetic.

These examinations, — which are mostly written, — take place regularly at the opening of the school year ; but any candidates who desire, may present themselves Thursday A. M., June 11, 1884. A boarding place for two or three days should be secured in advance.

The only time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first few weeks of this term are considered probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline, or in maturity of character, may not remain through the year to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

Candidates for admission to a higher standing are examined in the preparatory studies, and also in those that have been pursued by the class to which they desire admission.

These examinations are so conducted as to make them an accurate test of scholarship, and they will be confined to the first few weeks after the opening of the school-year.

While candidates are admitted to the junior class at sixteen years of age, it is desirable that they should be seventeen or eighteen. None should enter the senior class under twenty.

Pupils are received for one year, and it is expected, extraordinary circumstances excepted, that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the institution.

EXPENSES.

Board and tuition, including steam-heating, lights, and lectures, are $175 for the school-year, $100 to be paid the first Monday of the fall term, and $75 the first Monday of the second term. If, for any reason, the pupil should remain but a part of the year, the charge will be higher, — at the rate of $5.50 per week for the time spent at the institution. No deduction is made for temporary absences.

It is preferred that payment should be made in checks, on some bank in Boston or New York. These should be drawn for the exact amount, and should be made payable to the treasurer.

It is important that the term-bills be paid promptly. Much inconvenience is caused when there is a delinquency in this respect.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The regular course of instruction occupies four years. If any are in advance of the first year, they can be examined in the studies they have pursued, and take up those which follow, or give the time to optional studies. The studies of the course will be taken in their order; and pupils will be advanced from class to class according to their progress, and not according to the time spent in the Seminary.

Though these studies cannot be substituted for the regular curriculum, an additional diploma is given to any who complete either the Greek, German, or French course.

Instruction is given in Vocal Music, Reading, Penmanship, Gymnastics, Crayon and Pencil Drawing, and Painting in Water-colors, without extra charge. Those who wish to make Instrumental Music a specialty can have instruction at the rate of $15 for twenty lessons, not including piano. Others who desire to practice can have the use of an instrument on moderate terms.

Provision is made for those who wish to pursue their studies beyond the regular curriculum.

FAMILY ARRANGEMENTS.

All the teachers and students reside in the Seminary, mingling constantly in the familiar intercourse of a well-ordered Christian home. As every young lady has her own small but definite share in securing the comfort of the large household, a family feeling readily springs up, and soon becomes strong. The daily hour spent by each in domestic duties, under systematic planning and skillful supervision, disposes of the ordinary household affairs promptly and well. It gives healthful exercise, cultivates a taste for home occupations, honors labor, and makes the institution not only less expensive, but more independent than it could be with the scores of servants that would otherwise be required. The pupil sees what system, coöperation, and prompt activity can do; and in time she finds herself able not only to take responsibility, but to enjoy it. And thus in future years she will bear her part among the workers of the world with the greater ease and success.

PUNCTUALITY, STUDY-HOURS, AND RECREATION.

Perfect punctuality throughout the year is the standard presented to every pupil on entering the Seminary. Without a high standard of punctuality, it is impossible to maintain a high standard for study and correct scholarship. The loss of a single lesson, or the study-hours of an evening, may be felt for many weeks. One imperfect lesson often discourages a pupil, and produces a succession of similar lessons; one absence prepares the way for a second; and a deficiency of promptness in one scholar will have its influence on others. It is very important that the regular study-hours should not be interrupted. Calls and visits made by the young ladies are confined to the daily recreation-hours and the regular recreation-day. Their friends in the vicinity are requested, as far as practicable, to make their calls during these hours. Wednesday is the regular day of recreation, but the evening of Wednesday is not recreation-time.

Friends of the institution, and strangers from abroad, may feel at liberty to call on the teachers at any time most convenient for themselves, the Sabbath excepted.

THE SABBATH.

Attendance at church in the morning is required, and also at the Bible recitation in the afternoon.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls upon the Sabbath, nor should they spend a single Sabbath away from the Seminary during term time. However great may be its privileges elsewhere, the excitement of meeting friends and of visiting must prevent, in a measure, the benefit that might otherwise be gained. The religious influence of the institution, which though unsectarian has always been positive and strong, would be greatly hindered, were such absences allowed.

ANNIVERSARY AND PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.

The public examinations at the close of the present year will commence Tuesday A. M., June 24.

The anniversary exercises will be Thursday, June 26, commencing at eleven o'clock, A. M. Address by Rev. J. H. Vincent, D.D., of New Haven, Conn.

APPLICATIONS.

Communications relating to admission to the Seminary may be addressed to the Principal, Miss Elizabeth Blanchard. The name, age, attainments, and general characteristics of the applicant, should be stated.

TO ACCEPTED CANDIDATES.

If circumstances render your attendance doubtful, you are requested to communicate immediately the degree of uncertainty.

Be careful to be present the first day, Sept. 11. All should come on Wednesday, Sept. 10, that they may be in readiness to commence their examinations Thursday morning.

You are each expected to furnish your own towels, napkins and napkin-ring, two pairs of sheets and pillow-cases, and one pair of blankets, also two teaspoons. Each of these, and all articles of clothing, should be distinctly marked with the owner's full name.

Provide clothing suitable for the season and climate; such as flannels, woollen hose, thick shoes, overshoes, leggings, and a dress for gymnastic exercises, also an umbrella. All these articles should be brought at the beginning of the school-year. The gymnastic dress may be of flannel (dark blue is preferred), made with blouse-waist, sleeves full, belt loose, and the hem of the skirt seven inches from the floor.

It is desirable to be supplied with an English Dictionary, a Latin Lexicon, an Ancient and a Modern Atlas. Books of reference for Bible study will be useful, especially a Bible Dictionary.

Books and stationery can be purchased at the Seminary on reasonable terms.

During the month of May a copy of the Catalogue will be forwarded to each accepted candidate, with this paragraph marked. If there is a mistake about the application of any to whom it is thus forwarded, or if any who suppose themselves accepted fail to receive this Catalogue, information should be communicated immediately.

Mount Holyoke Seminary is in South Hadley, Mass., not Holyoke.

Persons wishing to come to the Seminary should ordinarily stop at the Smith's Ferry Station, on the Connecticut River Railroad, where stages meet each train. At Holyoke, also, stages meet several of the through trains.

Tickets for Smith's Ferry and checks for baggage, can be obtained in New York City, Boston, Albany, and in all the large towns on the Boston and Albany Railroad.

There is a telegraph-office in South Hadley, in the immediate vicinity of the Seminary.

FORM OF A BEQUEST.

MT. HOLYOKE SEMINARY.

LOCATION AND GROUNDS.

THE Seminary stands on the east side of the village street of South Hadley, not far from the church. Its buildings are but a little removed from the well-shaded highway; the grounds lying chiefly in the rear, and sloping eastward to the edge of a picturesque stream, which broadens into a pond just below. Beyond the stream, which is crossed by a rustic foot-bridge, rises Prospect Hill, commanding delightful views. A large part of the hill, as well as the pond lying at its foot, now belongs to the Seminary, by the gift of Hon. E. A. Goodnow of Worcester, and bears the name of Goodnow Park. In 1883 the estate adjoining the Seminary on the north was added, including about seven acres, with a large dwelling-house, now used for music-rooms and for classes in drawing.

BUILDINGS.

The various buildings have been erected or enlarged, from time to time, as the growth of the institution has required. The main edifice, which fronts west, has at each end a wing extending eastward: the extremities of the two wings are connected by the gymnasium, thus enclosing a quadrangle.

Steam-heat is supplied throughout, and an elevator gives easy access to the upper stories. Pure water is furnished in abundance, from an artesian well four hundred and fifty feet deep.

The library — a fire-proof building directly north of the main edifice, and connected with it, as shown in the frontispiece — was completed in 1870. The interior is handsomely finished in native woods. The bookcases and other furniture are of carved black walnut. The alcoves are so arranged as to form cosey nooks for readers, to whom the library is open thirteen or fourteen hours each day. The present number of volumes is eleven thousand; and, as these have been carefully selected with reference to the courses of study, a wide range of authorities can be consulted on whatever subject. Besides various rare works of early English writers, the library includes nearly one thousand volumes in foreign languages, chiefly French, German, Latin, and Greek. The scientific department contains many costly illustrated works, and there is a valuable collection of books on art.

The Lyman Williston Hall (finished in 1876) stands north-east of the other buildings, surrounded by a spacious lawn. It contains large and well-appointed rooms for lectures and recitations, extensive cabinets, a chemical laboratory for practical work, and a valuable philosophical apparatus.

The art-gallery occupies the entire upper floor of this building, including a large central apartment with several adjacent rooms. Among its treasures are Bierstadt's painting of the "Hetch Hetchie Cañon;" "Leonardo da Vinci and his Pupils," by Edwin White of the National Academy, with studies and cartoons by the same artist; the "Conway Meadows," by George Inness; and pictures by other well-known American painters. The old masters are represented by fine copies of Murillo's "Immaculate Conception," from the Royal Gallery at Madrid, of Raphael's "Transfiguration," Domenichino's "Last Communion of St. Jerome," Titian's "Assumption," and others of less note. Casts of antique statues and busts, photographs and engravings, coins and bronzes, further illustrate the history of art.

An astronomical observatory was completed in June, 1881. It contains a new telescope with an eight-inch object-glass, also a meridian circle, astronomical clock, chronograph, sextant, spectroscope, and other appliances. This building, with its equipment, as well as the lot on which it stands, is the gift of A. L. Williston, Esq., of Northampton, in memory of his son, JOHN PAYSON WILLISTON.

TERMS OF ADMISSION.

Candidates for admission to the junior class are examined in English Grammar and Analysis, Geography, History of the United States, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Olney's Complete School Algebra, or an equivalent, Physical Geography, Harkness's Latin Grammar and Latin Reader, and Cornelius Nepos, Cæsar, or Sallust.[1] In order that the requisite mathematical discipline may be gained, it is desirable that there be a familiar acquaintance with two or three different authors in higher arithmetic. A careful review of mental arithmetic is also important.

These examinations — which are mostly written — take place regularly at the opening of the school-year ; but any candidates who desire, may present themselves Thursday morning, June 11, 1885. A boarding-place for two or three days should be secured in advance.

The time for the admission of pupils is at the commencement of the fall term. The first few weeks of this term are considered probationary, that any who may be found to be particularly deficient in mental discipline, or in maturity of character, may not remain through the year, to their own disadvantage and to the injury of others.

Although well-qualified candidates may be admitted to the junior class at sixteen years of age, it is better that they should be seventeen or eighteen. None should enter the senior class under twenty.

Pupils are received for one year; and it is expected, extraordinary circumstances excepted, that they will remain through the year. At the expiration of that time it can be decided whether the best interests of the pupil will be promoted by a longer connection with the institution.

COURSE OF STUDY.

The prescribed curriculum is arranged to occupy four years. At the opening of the fall term, however, students may present for examination any of the earlier studies of the course, which they have thoroughly mastered elsewhere.

[1] The English system of pronunciation is the one used.

As classes recite in small divisions, and some branches are taken up at more than one time in the year, arrangements can be made for the progress of those who are somewhat in advance. The facilities for special work in the various departments are constantly increasing, as well as the number of those who pursue some favorite line of study beyond what is required. In most cases, this is done by devoting additional time during the course, — sometimes by post-graduate study.

It is the aim of the course to give a solid and well-balanced education in those things which are fundamental, at the same time encouraging and providing for further study, in whatever department it may be desired. The special courses arranged in French, German, and Greek, as well as in some of the sciences, are intended to be additional to the regular curriculum.

ANCIENT LANGUAGES. — Latin alone is required for admission. Much attention is at first devoted to grammatical forms and constructions, in respect to which, the previous training of candidates is often found to have been deficient. Subsequently, the literary characteristics of the various authors studied, are especially kept in view. It is the aim to do thoroughly whatever is attempted. There is opportunity to take up other Latin classics, in addition to the required course.

In Greek, there is an optional course, arranged to occupy four half-years. It includes portions of Homer, Herodotus, Thucydides, Xenophon, Plato, and Demosthenes, together with some of the Greek tragedies. Any who prefer to do so, can give to the Greek language the time provided for French or German in the regular course.

ANCIENT AND MEDIÆVAL LITERATURE. — The aim of this course is to give a comprehensive historical outline of both Oriental and classical literature, together with a critical analysis of a few of the masterpieces, as presented in the best English versions. After some studies and readings of Indian and other Oriental literature, that of Greece is taken up, with the aid of the works of Mure, Müller, Gladstone, and others. The Homeric poems, and especially the Iliad, are carefully studied in the light of the best literary criticism, as well as the latest archæological discoveries. The Greek drama, together with the arrangements of its theatre, is taken up; and the most celebrated plays are read and discussed by the class. Similar studies of Roman literature are included in the plan, as well as some of mediæval times, in the old Italian authors, the German, and the Norse.

MODERN LANGUAGES. — The regular course prescribes a half-year of either French or German; besides which, there is an extended optional course in each

(for which, see p. 27). The method of instruction is that of Sauveur and Heness. From the first, no English is used in the class-room; and every French or German word is associated directly with the idea it conveys, without the intervention of its English equivalent. Selections from many authors are read, including several of the present day; and attention is given to the history of the French and German literatures, as well as to translation from English, and original composition in these languages.

ENGLISH LITERATURE. — The regular course gives topical studies on the history of English literature, from Chaucer to Wordsworth; using, for the general survey, Shaw's Manual and Brooks's Primer, with Green's Short History. Carpenter's "English of the Fourteenth Century" is used in connection with Chaucer. Selected works of Shakspeare, Bacon, Milton, Jeremy Taylor, Dryden, Addison, Goldsmith, Burns, and Wordsworth are critically studied.

The advanced course includes further work in Shakspeare, Milton, and Wordsworth, besides taking up Spenser, Hooker, and Pope; and also some authors of the present day.

ENGLISH COMPOSITION AND RHETORIC. — During the first year, recitations in elementary rhetoric are required in connection with the work in composition, to which certain hours are devoted each week. Each student is instructed personally, as well as in the exercises of the class-room, throughout the entire course. In the third year, a higher rhetoric is taken up in daily recitations, with reference to the structure of English verse, and the principles of criticism.

MATHEMATICS. — The required course includes plane and solid geometry, algebra, and plane trigonometry. Considerable original work is required in connection with geometry. Further mathematical instruction is provided, if desired.

PHYSICS. — The subjects chiefly taken up in the regular course are hydrostatics, pneumatics, acoustics, heat, light, electricity, and magnetism. The recitations are accompanied by lectures and illustrative experiments by the teacher, and there is also a biennial course of lectures by a non-resident professor. The apparatus is excellent, and there is opportunity for advanced work if desired.

ASTRONOMY. — The prescribed course takes up, in recitations, the fundamental facts and principles of the science, including something of its history, as well as recent theories and discoveries. Numerous celestial objects are repeatedly shown to the students, including the sun-spots, the moon, planets, double-stars, star-clusters, and nebulæ. A most important addition to the other advantages provided for astronomical study is the biennial course of lectures by Dr. C. A. Young of Princeton.

Those who desire, and are prepared for advanced work in astronomy, have instruction and practice in the use of the meridian circle, equatorial telescope, and spectroscope.

CHEMISTRY. — The regular course includes recitations, accompanied with lectures and illustrative experiments by the teacher, and laboratory work performed by the students, under the teacher's supervision. There is also a yearly course of lectures by a non-resident professor. The subjects taken up in lectures and recitations include chemical theories, the non-metallic elements and their compounds, and the more important metals, with something of organic chemistry. Advanced students take laboratory work in qualitative analysis, including both blowpipe and wet analysis.

MINERALOGY AND GEOLOGY. — In the second year, there is a short course of recitations in mineralogy, taking up its general facts and principles: the study and identification of numerous specimens from the cabinet are also required. There is opportunity for further study of crystallography, a fine lithological microscope having recently been added to the apparatus for microscopical research. Geology is taken up in the third year of the course. In the recitations and lectures, the successive formations are studied, as illustrated in charts and maps of various localities, and especially in the great geological map of the United States, prepared by Professor Hitchcock of Dartmouth, the lecturer in this department. The progress of life is studied in connection with Ward's university series of casts, and the various collections of fossils. The paleontological department also contains a fine collection of the fossil foot-marks of the Connecticut Valley.

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE. — The instruction in this branch is given by the resident physician of the seminary. The structure of the human body is studied from the skeleton, the manikin, and enlarged models of various organs, with occasional dissections of corresponding organs of the lower animals. Practical lectures upon hygiene, as well as physiology, are given in connection with the recitations.

ZOÖLOGY. — The required course begins with an outline of the classification of the animal kingdom, and study of the external characteristics of typical forms of vertebrates, using Jordan's Manual. The dissection of one or more of these forms gives the student some idea of their anatomical structure; and similar studies are made of certain invertebrate forms, including the lobster, clam, and earthworm. Some time is devoted also to the lower forms of animal life. In connection with the recitations, lectures are given by the teacher.

BIOLOGY. — This course, which is optional, consists mainly of laboratory work, with occasional lectures on the fundamental facts and principles of general biology. In studying the lower forms of animal life, the course marked out in Brooks's Handbook of Invertebrates is followed. Instruction is given in histology, and in the embryology of the chick; also in microscopical work, including the preparation, staining, and mounting of specimens. In studying the anatomy of vertebrates, Wilder's Anatomical Technology, and Mivart's work on the cat are used: with the assistance of these manuals, the skeleton, muscles, nerves, blood-vessels, and viscera of the cat are thoroughly examined. The dissection of other vertebrates enables the student to compare homologous parts. Other works much consulted are Packard's Zoölogy, Claus's Zoölogy, Flower's Osteology, Huxley's Anatomy of Invertebrates, Huxley and Martin's Practical Biology, Balfour and Foster's Embryology, Balfour's Comparative Embryology, and Owen's Comparative Anatomy.

BOTANY. — The required course begins with the general morphology and classification of phænogams. General histology and physiology are afterwards taken up; and systematic botany is continued, with especial attention to the more difficult orders of phænogams, and the higher cryptogams. Each student is required to present for examination an herbarium of not less than seventy-five plants, and a list of at least two hundred plants analyzed.

The advanced work is mainly in the special study of groups, taking characteristic specimens of gramineæ, cyperaceæ, vascular cryptogams, muscineæ, characeæ, filamentous and unicellular algæ and fungi. These are studied with respect to their histology, physiology, classification, and economic uses.

The laboratory work is supplemented by lectures. Students are required to prepare drawings and diagrams of objects studied, and are taught to mount specimens for microscopical use.

Among the principal works of reference are Goodale's Vegetable Histology and Physiology, Thome's, McKloskie's, Bessey's, and Sachs's Botanies, and Lesquereux and James's Mosses of North America.

HISTORY. — Two courses, one in ancient, and the other in mediæval and modern, history, are required. The study is pursued by topics, and requires much use of the library. The philosophy of history is emphasized; and the student is led to reflect on the causes and tenor of events, and the influence of individual minds. Abstracts are frequently required; and special topics are assigned to each student, to be presented before the class. The relation of history to other studies is kept in view, and it is the aim to inspire an enthusiasm which will lead the pupil to more extended historical reading in after-years.

CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES. — The aim of this course is to give a correct idea of our system of government, by a study of the American Constitution as originally framed, with its successive modifications to the present time. Besides recitations from the textbook, and consultation of authorities on the history of the Constitution, various related topics are presented by the teacher, including those political, financial, and social questions of the day, some comprehension of which it is desirable that every educated person should have.

MENTAL AND MORAL SCIENCE. — The required course in these studies continues during a large part of the senior year. In the former, the textbook is Hickok's Empirical Psychology: among the other authors consulted, are Sully, Porter, and Hopkins. In ethics, Hickok's Moral Science is used; with discussions on practical questions, by the class.

THEISM AND CHRISTIAN EVIDENCES. — These subjects occupy the latter part of the senior year. No single textbook is adopted; but the leading topics are systematically pursued, and the views of various authors considered. Among the works most consulted are Fisher's Grounds of Theistic and Christian Belief, Wright's Logic of Christian Evidences, and Butler's Analogy.

HISTORY OF ART. — This study is taken up in the senior year, Lübke's History of Art furnishing the outline, with constant use of the best works of reference in each division of the subject. The historical development of art is philosophically traced, with the aid of excellent copies of several of the old masters, casts of antique statuary, and numerous photographs. Courses of lectures are also given by non-resident professors.

MUSIC. — All the students have regular lessons in choral classes. Private instruction in the cultivation of the voice, or in piano music, is at the rate of $15 for twenty lessons, besides the use of the instrument.

Several concerts by first-class artists are given at the Seminary each year.

EXPENSES.

Board and tuition, including steam-heating, lights, and lectures, are $175 for the school-year; $100 to be paid the first Monday of the fall term, and $75 the first Monday of the second term. If, for any reason, the pupil should remain but a part of the year, the charge will be higher, — at the rate of $5.50 per week for the time spent at the institution. No deduction is made for temporary absences.

It is preferred that payment should be made in checks, on some bank in Boston or New York. These should be drawn for the exact amount, and should be made payable to the treasurer, A. L. Williston. If sent by mail, they may be, for convenience, enclosed to the Principal.

It is important that the term-bills be paid promptly.

FAMILY ARRANGEMENTS.

All the teachers and students reside in the Seminary, mingling constantly in the familiar intercourse of a well-ordered Christian home. As every young lady has her own small but definite share in securing the comfort of the large household, a family feeling readily springs up, and soon becomes strong. The daily hour spent by each in domestic duties, under systematic planning and skilful supervision, disposes of the ordinary household affairs promptly and well. It gives healthful exercise, cultivates a taste for home occupations, honors labor, and makes the institution, not only less expensive, but more independent than it could be with the scores of servants that would otherwise be required. The pupil sees what system, co-operation, and prompt activity can do; and, in time, she finds herself able, not only to take responsibility, but to enjoy it. And thus, in future years, she will bear her part among the workers of the world, with the greater ease and success.

The regulations of the family are such as tend to insure habits of promptness and diligence, of order and system, of self-control and thoughtfulness for others. Punctual attendance throughout each term is exceedingly important. The regular study-hours should be uninterrupted. Calls and visits from friends of the students should be limited to the weekly recreation-time, which includes Tuesday evening and Wednesday, — not Wednesday evening, nor Saturday.

Friends of the institution, or strangers desiring to visit it, are at liberty to call upon the teachers at any time most convenient to themselves, the sabbath excepted.

THE SABBATH.

Attendance at church in the morning is required, and also at the Bible recitation in the afternoon.

The young ladies do not make or receive calls upon the sabbath, nor should hey spend a single sabbath away from the Seminary during term-time. However great may be its privileges elsewhere, the excitement of meeting friends and of visiting must prevent, in a measure, the benefit that might otherwise be gained. The religious influence of the institution, which, though unsectarian, has always been positive and strong, would be greatly hindered were such absences allowed.
